Controversy Over Erection Of Dewberry School In Mahoning Township

TAXPAYERS PROTEST ADDITIONAL EXPENSE

Lee L. Driver, Head Of Rural Schools, Is Met By Large Delegation

Citizens of Mahoning township are) aroused over what they believe to be needless expense occasioned by the state educational department in the erection of a small, one room school building to take the place of the Dewberry school, recently destroyed by an incendiary fire.

The school board had let a contract for a building to cost $1,250. The department refused to confirm the erection of the building, and sent Lee L. Driver, Deputy State Superintendent in charge of rural construction to investigate.

Driver came yesterday. He was met at the site of the building by the school board and practically the entire patronage of the district. The school board and all of the patrons were satisfied with the plans as drawn and with the award of the contract.

Opposes Local Plan

Driver couldn't see it that way. For the school board to go ahead and draw plans for a $1,250 school building without consulting his department, didn't seem to be to his liking. It was in vain that members of the school board and patrons of the school argued. At times the arguments became quite heated but Driver was obstinate.

The outcome of the situation was that it was decided to have Architect Eckles prepare plans for the

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Someone in the New Castle community was lucky enough to bag a bear, for it was seen on an automobile which was driven through the downtown section yesterday afternoon. Shooting bear is what we would term real sport, but shooting deer is only a matter of being lucky enough to get in sight of one, according to the accounts of most hunters.

Pa Newc observes that quite a few New Castle folks have colds, due to the changable weather.

Football fans are certainly hoping for a change in weather conditions before tomorrow. Weather conditions of today would be a handicap to both the New Castle high school eleven and Union high school eleven in the charity battle at the Taggart stadium on Saturday afternoon. The game starts at 2 o'clock.

East Washington street bridge sort of seemed like the stage for the parade of returning hunters yesterday. In the course of half an hour five or six autos crossed the bridge carrying several deer each. The autos were those of returning big game hunters. Placing the deer along the front fenders of the car seemed to be the favorite method of carrying the trophies of the hunt.

They must feed them good in the Navy! Pa Newc has just been looking over the Thanksgiving menu served on the U. S. S. Pennsylvania and it includes everything from chicken gumbo soup to cigarettes. Bob Shoaf, a local lad, is on that ship.

Daily Weather Report

U. S. weather bureau statistics for the 24 hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning follow:

Maximum temperature, 54.
Minimum temperature, 23.
Precipitation .36 inches.
River stage 4.3 feet.

Minimum temperature, 28.
No precipitation.

MARINE FROM NEW CASTLE WITH FORCE AT PEIPING

During the warlike preparations in Manchuria between Japan and China, New Castle has had an interested spectator in the person of William Dale Logan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Logan of this city, who has been stationed at Peiping (Peking) China, as a member of the Legation Guard.

Mr. Logan is now on the Pacific Ocean, abroad the U. S. S. Henderson, enroute to San Francisco, Cal., after three years service with the Marine Band of the Legation Guards and has had an experience there that is rich with interesting incidents.

Seven years ago he enlisted in the Marines and served in a number of foreign countries. Three years ago he was sent to China where he has been ever since. As a member of the band he attended the dinner given Roy Chapman Andrews, famous explorer, which was given in Peiping and has accompanied the United States minister on his trips through China and up into Manchuria.

Upon his return to the States, Mr. Logan will trans-ship at San Francisco and from there will go to Quantico, Virginia by way of the Panama Canal. He expects to come to New Castle on an extended furlough sometime in the spring.

Swick Supports Snell In Battle Against Tilson

Local Congressman Is Aligned With Snell In House Contest

SNELL IS SEEKING FLOOR LEADERSHIP

Will Probably Supplant Tilson As Leader Of House G. O. P.

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Washington Correspondent of New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4.—Representative J. Howard Swick will stand by Representative Bert Snell of New York when Snell and Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut tangle over the question of who will be Republican leader in the house this session.

When Snell and Tilson opposed each other for the Republican speakership nomination in the caucus here last Monday, Mr. Swick voted for Snell on all of the seven ballots. Snell, of course, won the nomination and it now looks as though he will oust Tilson from the house leadership next week.

Colonel Tilson has served as Republican floor leader for six years

City Accepts New Apparatus

New 500 Gallon Pumper And Truck To Be Assigned Second Ward

TO START SERVICE SATURDAY MORNING

Council convened in city hall today, formally accepted the new American La France fire engine and authorized payment of $6,000 to the company. It was reported later that the new apparatus would be assigned to the Second ward Saturday morning. The present Second ward truck will be kept in the South Jefferson street station for reserve duty.

Fire Chief Lynn reported to solons that the apparatus had been put through the stipulated test by Samuel L. Smith, field engineer of the company and M. L. McMillen, city motor mechanic.

Lynn also reported that a check showed all items had been received but requested the city purchase a bell. A siren is on the equipment but it is only sounded enroute to blazes.

The firemen will load hose in the new cart this afternoon and sometime Saturday morning it will go on duty in the Second ward. The new engine has a 500 gallon pump.

State Motorists Will Gather Here

Delegates and members of every motor club in the state will be here and preliminary arrangements are already under way by B. N. Hanlon, manager of the New Castle Motor Club who is handling the local end of the convention.

S. Edward Gable of Lancaster, Pa., president of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and Richard Maxwell, secretary will be present and Mr. Maxwell will probably make a trip to New Castle in the next sixty days to make preparations for the convention.

School Teachers Score Success With Comedy

Present Play For Charity Benefit For School Children At Washington High Auditorium Last Night—Repeat Program Tonight.

Up at the George Washington junior high school auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight there will likely be a large audience set to see what about 700 other persons are overjoyed they didn't miss last night—three full acts of that amusing, laugh-provoking comedy that bears that mysterious-sounding "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" for a title.

The crowd has been amply informed of the play's triumph today by that line of satisfied customers that filed out of the auditorium last night, perfectly satisfied with the gifted dramatic ability displayed and the interesting plot the play unfolds.

To Aid Charity.

While the play produced satisfaction-plus in the minds of those who saw it, it produced a handsome cash sum for the coffers of the emergency relief fund for local school children. Public school teachers, with dramatic help from the outside, are giving it as a benefit.

Tonight's proceeds go to the same cause—to the poorly nourished school tots who sometimes sit in their classrooms with faces reflecting their needs.

"Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," like everything else the teachers place their hands to, couldn't be matched by the most professional of stage folk in their benefit performance. Possibly it was that underlying thought of the cause for which they were enlisted that made them act to perfection.

As to the cast, you could have asked for none better. The leads, the minor players and those acting in in-between roles gave of their best

LOWELL SHERMAN CALLS IT QUITS

Now he's filed a suit in Los Angeles for divorce. They separated after a year and seven months of wedded life.

Strange Case At Pittsburgh Has Puzzled Police

Philip Piazza, 19, Has Been Missing Several Days, Auto Found On Bridge

BELIEVED LATEST VICTIM OF RACKET

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4.—Fate of Philip Piazza, 19-year-old bridegroom feared to be this city's latest racket victim, was still cloaked in mystery today.

Police announced themselves at a loss to explain disappearance of Piazza from his automobile on the Sixteenth Street Bridge, after two days of dragging the Allegheny river. Piazza's automobile, doors opened, motor running and lights burning, was found parked on the bridge Tuesday night.

But of its owner no trace has been found. His bride of a few weeks, Lena, 15, told detectives today her husband has not reappeared at his home and no word from him has been received.

In Piazza's car police found memoranda relating to sale or purchase of quantities of intoxicants.

CARLSON AND BARTLEY GET THEIR DEER

Andrew Carlson, Princeton Road, R. D. No. 6 and his father-in-law Ed. Bartley of Boston avenue, were among the fortunate big game hunters of this district. The former shot a large doe about eight miles from Penfield, Clearfield county on Tuesday morning, while the latter shot a good sized buck.

Friday evening L. W. Lathrop, James Bell, Chas. E. Gee, and Paul Starke returned to their homes here after hunting near Crosby, McKean county, the past few days.

Deer Donated To Crawford Oakridge

With the many deer killed by men of this section, F. E. Stitchberry, of Walmo, who was successful in bagging one which weighed about 135 pounds the second day he was out, has been generous about his efforts. Mr. Stitchberry donated his deer to to kiddies at the Crawford Oakridge home, and venison dinners will be a big feature for this group.

Mr. Stitchberry states he went to Forrest County bear hunting the first day, and due to the snow leaving, it was hard to track the animals. He killed the deer in Clarion County.

No Deer Yet Given To Mayor's Relief

In spite of the great number of deer which have been killed by local hunters, not one has yet been donated to the Mayor's Relief committee, W. B. Howe, chairman of the food supply committee stated today.

In many instances, reports have been made of every member in a hunting party getting a deer this year, and this meat should not be wasted.

New Castle Junction Road Is Improved

Men who are engaged in work at New Castle Junction can now get in and out on a highway that doesn't threaten to crack all the springs in the car. Under the supervision of H. W. Lightner, superintendent of the road system in Lawrence County for the state, the West Pittsburgh road has been topped with limestone chips and oil, and while it is not a permanent highway, it is far superior to the old dirt road.

The road is an example of what is being done throughout the state on the 20,000 mile system adopted by the regular session of the General Assembly. In some cases, permanent improvements of macadam road are being made, while in others, where aid is needed immediately the chips and oil are being used.

With some additional care in the spring, the road should be good for some time, although eventually it is expected that it will be necessary to lay a permanent road through to West Pittsburg.

By JAMES R. YOUNG

TOKYO, Dec. 4.—Strong representations against any neutral intervention in Manchuria were made by Japanese military headquarters at Mukden in a wireless message to the war office today.

Military headquarters objected to creation of a neutral zone and the dispatch of a neutral committee of observers to the region against Chinchow on the grounds it would lead to actual foreign intervention in a dispute firmly believed here to concern Japan and China alone.

It was understood the Mukden viewpoint was supported in certain circles fo the government. In this

Lake Erie Coast Guards Nab Boat Laden With Rum

TWO MEMBERS OF CREW WOUNDED

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 4—A spectacular three mile chase on Lake Erie was climaxed near here today when coastguardsmen shot and seriously wounded two alleged rum runners and seized 780 cases of mixed liquors.

Gus Welsh, 30, Detroit, and Edward Zess, 28, Port Clinton, Ohio, were the wounded men. Both were expected to recover, according to attaches at Toledo hospital where they were taken.

The coastguardsmen said they saw the craft, a 65 foot cabin cruiser several miles off Kelley's Island they gave chase and fired a number of warning shells while failed to stop the men.

Two miles southeast of the Toledo harbor light coastguardsmen said they began firing with rifles. Both men were hit almost immediately and the boat was brought to a stop.

The cargo was taken to Sandusky where the cutter is stationed. Charges of violating the national prohibition law were expected to be prepared against the men by federal authorities in Toledo today.

Benefit Game On Saturday

New Castle citizens in large numbers will attend the benefit football game which will be played at Taggart Field Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, between New Castle High and Union Township High.

Not only will the game be an interesting contest, but the cause is a most deserving one, the entire receipts of the game, to which there will be no expense, going for the relief of needy children in the schools of the two districts.

Relief Fund Increased By Employes Of City

Contributions to the Mayor's Relief Fund were swelled to $3,675.14 today, the largest amount during the past 24 hours having been given by employes of the city, who donated a day's pay from their November salaries.

This represents an increase of approximately $500 in the last day, and will help materially in providing a happy Christmas for many local families who are practically destitute.

The money must come in at a faster rate, however, as the real need of many families is just beginning to be sensed and many new applications for assistance are coming in each day.

More orders are being filled at the Carnegie Auditorium and it is believed that the peak will not be reached until the month of January, as many people are living on hoarded stores of food which they were able to accumulate this summer.

Those who have not made their contribution to the Mayor's Fund are asked to do so at once, specifying the amount they will be able to give monthly. This will enable the committee to know how much they will have to depend on each month.

Contributions may be made by filling out the blank below and mailing or sending it to City Treasurer L. W. McClung, who is treasurer of the Mayor's Relief Fund.

Governor Pinchot Appeals Direct To People Of State

Seeks Popular Sentiment To Force Relief Program Through Legislature

POINTS OUT DEFECTS IN SUBSTITUTE PLAN

Governor Asks Citizens To Make Wishes Known To Representatives At Once

By LEO V. DOLAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4.—Striking at legislators in their home districts, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today appealed to the people "back home" to enlist under his banner in the fight to carry his unemployment relief program to enactment.

He pleaded particularly for the voters in each district to exert pressure on their representatives to carry through his plans for direct relief through the issuance of "prosperity bonds" and contributions by wealthy Pennsylvanians. Funds raised under this plan would be used for food and clothing by a state commission on unemployment relief.

The prosperity bond scheme was rejected definitely by senate leaders who last Tuesday announced a substitute program after protracted conferences with the executive.

To People Of State

Governor Pinchot's statement, was addressed directly "to the people of Pennsylvania:"

He said:

"I appeal to the people of Pennsylvania to convince their representatives in the General Assembly before next Monday not only that every bill in the new plan is urgently needed, but also that the state should open the door to loan—contributions for direct relief.

"I am not willing to accept without protest a plan which provides nothing for women and children....

"Food-relief is imperative. Work-relief alone will merely scratch the surface....

"The real question is—are you willing to have the state provide direct relief or are you not?"

Excavating For Station Ceases

Must Obtain Permit From City To Place New 'Gas' Tanks

Excavation for a proposed gasoline service station at Highland and Norwood avenues has ceased, temporarily, at least, until the builder receives a permit from the city.

It was reported in city council meeting at the municipal building today that the office of the city engineer had granted a permit for only the replacing of a gasoline tank in Norwood Avenue.

To place more than one pump will require that the builders obtain a permit and pending the request it was reported by the city engineer that excavating had stopped.

FOUR MEN RETURN; TWO SUCCESSFUL IN BAGGING DEER

The largest buck that has been reported among the New Castle hunters is that shot by Mike Carvella of 19 West Reynolds street, when he brought down a 10 point deer that weighs 210 pounds. He got it in Elk county.

He was accompanied on the hunting trip by Gabriel Petruccia, but the latter did not get a deer.

and in the Republican caucus last March was re-elected for another term of service. It has always been the practice, however, that the party's speakership nominee become the party leader when the Democrats succeed in electing the house speaker.

Snell Nominee.

Snell is now Republican nominee for the speakership. It appears inevitable that the Democrats will organize the house and elect the speaker next Monday. Such action, of course, will leave Mr. Snell as a defeated speakership nominee, and basing his claim upon precedent, he will demand that he made Republican floor leader and Tilson ousted from that post.

Naturally, Tilson is preparing to fight him to a standstill. But the New Englander who has so long been the G. O. P. steersman is losing power. He is a wet and Snell is a dry, and this fact further contributes to Snell power. Very likely the Republicans will meet in caucus next Monday or Tuesday night for a vote on the leadership question, and at the present writing it looks as though Snell will succeed in ejecting Tilson from the job he has held for six years.

In the causus on the speakership nomination last Monday the Pennsylvania delegation split, the majority going for Snell by a small margin. Congressman Swick was one of those swinging to Snell, and he will back the New Yorker for the floor leadership when that matter is brought before the caucus next week.

SCHOOL PLANS ARE DISCARDED; NEW ONES MADE

one room school at once, take bids, and submit them to the department. Driver insisted that seven sets of plans be prepared for the department and five sets of specifications.

One of the provisions insisted upon was that the chimney of the little building have a 16-inch flue and that it be encased in brick eight inches thick. This would be larger and heavier chimney than is usually found on a big city business block.

Architect Eckles went to work Thursday and got out sketches from which three responsible bidders who were called in made estimates, as the concession of not advertising was granted.

Michael Gierling submitted a bid of $1,428; Edward Porter, $1,525 and the New Castle Lumber and Construction Company, $1,596.

Take Plans To Capital

James H. Eakin, president of the school board and Roy McBride, a member, are leaving for Harrisburg this afternoon with the plans and the bids. If they meet with the approval of the department, the contract will be let and work will be started at once.

The question has arisen as to why the school board didn't go ahead without the consent of the state department. The reason is that the school code is such that the state could have withheld the state appropriation for the school, if permission were not given for the erection of the building.

The case is but another illustration of political activities which has been rapidly centralizing all power at Harrisburg.

"The people of Pennsylvania are entitled to know that this new program will have the following results:

"1. There will be less than half as much work-relief as under my plan—$20,000,000 instead of $45,000,000.

"2. The state road program for next summer will be seriously crippled.

"3. The new plan means that no money borrowed by counties and other municipalities, against delinquent taxes and spent for relief, will be repaid by the state, and thus lighten this load of local taxation. This part of my program has been cut out.

"4. Worst of all, by far, it means no direct food-relief through the state, such as my plan provides for to the possible extent of $35,000,000 in loan-contributions.

"5. Finally, the new plan eliminates the constitutional amendment included in my plan whereby other similar crises in the future could, be met without the trouble we are having to meet this one."

The senate plan, he said, will provide only $20 expenditure for each family of the 1,000,000 unemployed men. The jobless and their dependents, he said, number 3,000,000.

Indirectly, the Governor also revealed a willingness to surrender complete control of the proposed state commission on unemployment relief. He expressed willingness that the legislature should designate two members, the Governor two, and the state treasurer be the fifth commissioner. In the past, his plan included four members selected by himself, plus the state treasurer.

Here's the Play

Briefly, the play, the scene for which is the comfortable living room in the Long Island country home of the wealthy and dignified family of the aged Justin Rawson, the part played by Jimmy Smith. Between acts 1 and 2, one hour is supposed to elapse; between acts 2 and 3, 10 minutes.

All of the action centers about the visit of Mrs. de Salle (Geraldine Turk), an elderly English lady, and her two daughters, Violet (Helen Lyle) and Adelaide, otherwise known as Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh (Betty Glover) to the Rawson country home. The younger daughter, Violet, has been engaged to marry Anthony Rawson (Dudley Arnold), the rich Mr. Rawson's elder son. The de Salles are visiting to personally offer their approval of the forthcoming match.

The Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh is a rather sophisticated impostor of the wealthy Rawsons. Her early life was as common as could be, for she and her sister were the daughters of old Jim Sales, patent medicine man who once did business around Missionary Loop, Ind. Nevertheless, through the driving determination of the vivacious daughter, Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh, the de Sales had pushed themselves into the home of the aristocratic Rawsons.

It was a case where Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh chose to take her family, by whatever way it took, into the exclusive circles of those blessed with a fabulous fortune.

Consternation Ensues.

But, late in the second act, come more exciting moments when word spreads about that Peter Swallow (J. C. Ward), the tombstone salesman of Missionary Loop, Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh's old boy friend, will pay the family a call. It's almost hysterics that grasp the de Salles—for Salesman Pete would certainly recognize them. At least his former sweetheart, "Della", the name Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh once received, would be recognized, they felt.

The tenseness that comes before any climax surely grips itself on an audience that watches "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" just about in the middle of the second act.

It's the third act that brings more action—the coming of Mr. Swallow. Egotistical is all that he is, from the bottoms of his shoes to the highest spot on his head. He would remind you, no matter when, that his "monumentalistic" work is quite important. Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh terms the minutes she spent after they had met in the exclusive home as "monumentalistic".

At first, Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh, or Adelaide, refuses to consider Mr. Swallow's round-about suggestion that she is a girl he once knew. He's certain in a way; uncertain in another. Finally, Adelaide's youngest sister, Violet, tired of posing, reveals it all. She sends her family into a fury by telling aloud that the de Salles are not the famous English family that the Rawsons always considered them.

But here the turn in the plot comes in. Violet, long engaged to Rawson's eldest son, finally turns the trick and marries his younger brother, Geoffrey (Joe Pearson). The oldest always portrays the rich young man who makes love to the maids about the house and is yet engaged to marry pretty Violet.

All the time the youngest had a love for the farmer life and so is repulsed by his father. He wins Violet after the early life of Anthony, the oldest, has been disclosed by Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh, following the expose of her family's life. Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh threatens the Rawsons with publishing the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth in the press. Dramatic moments bring a happy friendship between both again, and the curtain falls with Violet won by Geoffrey.

Portraying a role in an excellent manner was Miss Rawson, Justin's sister (Ruth Lewis), who took an active part in the settling of the family controversy. Nina (Mildred Burleson) was the efficient maid, and as an actress she was at her best. She kept the audience in laughter. William Wallace and Mildred Updegraff had the roles of Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt, friends of the Rawsons. Harry Culliford served as a most capable butler to the Rawson family, playing the part of "Kitson" admirably.

Intermission found the senior high school orchestra playing under the direction of Joseph F. Replogle, and the numbers were enjoyed. Featuring was a xylophone solo, played by Miss Ruth Phillips, member of the school's sophomore class.

connection, the foreign office declared today it would make no more concessions to China. It was unofficially reported the Japanese government was ready to see the League of Nations abandon its efforts to mediate the dispute entirely, rather than capitulate further to Chinese demands.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

QUAI D'ORSAY, Paris, Dec. 4.—Both the Japanese and Chinese League of Nations delegations today received replies from their respective governments to the league's proposal for an international investigation of the Manchurian conflict and the creation of a neutral zone in south Manchuria.

It was understod that neither the Tokyo nor Nanking government authorized acceptance of the council's plan in its present forms.

A meeting of the 12 neutral members of the council was expected to be held at 5 p. m. to consider the replies.

The erroneous report of Japanese soldiers invading the city of Harbin, which caused considerable alarm in Chinese circles, was formally repudiated by the Japanese delegation here today. A spokesman for the delegation informed the council that the Japanese consul-general at Harbin had advised him the report originated from a visit paid to Harbin by 40 Japanese Boy Scouts.

"Because of the extreme cold," he said. "The boys were obliged to wear army overcoats supplied by the military authorities, which gave them the appearance of real soldiers."

Hot dogs, and hot chocolate were the main articles of food disposed of—and they certainly tasted good at camp. Dancing, games, etc., were enjoyable diversions.

If the water raises very much because of today's rain, it will probably be next week before the work can be resumed.

Good progress has been made on the project so far, and will be pushed forward to completion as soon as favorable weather returns.

CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR BALDWIN CLASS

To start the holiday period with the proper spirit the members of the Baldwin Bible class of the Highland United Presbyterian church held held their Christmas party Thursday evening in the church.

A brief business meeting was called at 8 o'clock by the president, Mrs. F. L. Burton, with Mrs. Maddocks in charge of the devotional opening.

Plans were discussed for the white gift at Christmas and the packing of baskets for the needy, then the meeting was turned over to Mrs. C. B. Sproull, who announced the feature of the evening would be a playlet, "Castles in Spain," and as the curtains were drawn a room in an old ladies' home was shown, with Mrs. Fullerton and Mrs. Dyer, whose parts were portrayed by Mrs. H. S. Kison and Mrs. Thomas Lindsey, opening the playlet. Mrs. Ray Rhodes and Mrs. R. S. Cline, took the parts of Mrs. Brown, a fighting old lady, and Mrs. Mitchell, the superintendent of the home and peal after peal of laughter resounded through the room at the antics ofthe old ladies and the ludicrousness of their customers. The stage was set with ancient furniture and fixtures.

When the playlet was finished the audience was asked to come into the old ladies' home, where a Christmas party was in order, a small Christmas tree was pleced on the "washstand" of Mrs. Dyer, and a long table was brought in, and in this was a bowl of lovely flowers, and tall burning red tapers shed a soft light over the odd shaped and sized packages, which were then distributed to the members.

At thmis time, the hostesses, Mrs. H. Houston, Mrs. S. G. Ligo, Mrs. T. E. Dukes, Mrs. J. W. McCreary, Miss Bertha Rhodes and Mrs. William Allen, invited the group to the dining room, and here long tables were beautifully arranged in the form of an U, and decorated with tall vases of red and white flowers and red tapers, with the members of the cast of the playlet and the director, Mrs. Fred Brown, seated at the head.

A most tempting lunch was served and the balance of the evening was spent at Japanese ball.

USING WASHINGTON HIGH GYM

FOR some time past there has been a lot of discussion in high school athletic circles over the matter of which gymnasium will be used for the senior high school games this fall and winter.

The gymnasium at the George Washington junior high school has a larger floor and will seat a larger crowd than the senior high school gym, it is reported. Hence, it is believed by some, that it would be a good move to use the Washington high gym for the senior high games.

On the other hand, the school and athletic authorities are faced with the responsibility of determining whether or not the change would be justified. Conduct of the spectators at the games is a factor that has to be considered.

The Washington school is one of the finest in this district. The gymnasium would have to be reached through the main hallway of the new school, as there does not appear to be an outside entrance that is available.

Whether the conduct of the spectators and fans would be such as to justify using the Washington high gym for the senior high games is the problem for the school authorities and the athletic board. It is probable that some experimenting will be required. If the spectators and fans respect the conditions at the new building, the games might properly be played there. But if there is not the proper respect for the situation, then the privilege can be cut off.

It looks to us largely a matter the conduct of the fans will determine.

COINING NEW WORDS

Every new invention and each newly discovered branch of human knowledge involves additions to our vocabulary. The automobile and the airplane contributed divers new and strange words to the English language, many of which have been so generally adopted that their permanence is virtually assured.

This is not always the case, however, with the laboriously fabricated words devised by entomologists as more accurately fitting the thing or the principle described. The people have a way of discriminating in such matters, and it often happens that the better form, orthographically, is neglected for the more spontaneous and popular. A naval air pilot is objecting just now to the use of the term "navigator" to the individual who directs the court of an airship and suggests that "avigator" and "avigation" would be more accurate and appropriate.

This may well be, but the public will decide, not the navy or the lexicographers.

PREVENTING COLDS

Recognized authorities on such things advise women to wear less clothing in order to be more healthy and thus to be able to resist influenza and cold germs.

The trouble seems to come when women insist on wearing their furs indoors. They become overheated while shopping or calling and then go outdoors to become chilled. A cold or attack of grippe or influenza follows.

This warning may well apply to both sexes. Men are perhaps more guilty than women of wearing overcoats in superheated office buildings, although they may plead innocent to the charge of wearing more than one pair of socks at a time, a custom now common among the ladies.

The slight perspiration caused by too much clothing indoors is responsible for more people taking cold than may be realized. Many overcoats are so heavy that it is actually easier to keep them on than to take them off. Their very warmth, however, is their bad point when worn indoors. When the wearer finally does go out into the air he finds that he had defeated the very purpose of wearing heavy garments.

THE IDEAL GIFT

What is the ideal gift of a husband to his wife? This is the question that is absorbing the masculine mind these Christmas-shopping days. In a pure spirit of service some qualifications for the ideal gift are offered:

There should be in it the element of surprise. This eliminates all the articles the good wife has hinted at.

It must fit without being tried on and without guilty requests for measurements.

It must be sufficiently expensive to reflect a husband's affection and not too expensive to break his bank account.

It must be something a wife can use to the exclusion of her husband, or else she will suspect he got it for himself.

It must be useful without being strictly practical.

It must cost as much or more than the gifts other husbands in the neighborhood present their wives.

It must be something that can be picked up in ten-minutes' shopping but reflect a week's shopping.

Such an ideal gift exists, no doubt, and it would take an ideal husband to select it and an ideal wife to appreciate it, and the millennium isn't due before Christmas.

CLEVER JAPS

Things have progressed to that stage in Manchuria, as Japan wages her "war that is not a war," where the handwriting on the wall grows distinct for even the casual reader. Japan is showing her hand in spite of all her guile, and protestations of innocence.

Korea's history is repeating itself in Manchuria. Japan annexed Korea after making a treaty with her to respect her independence. The Nipponese are now maneuvering to annex Manchuria in violation of her nine-power treaty with the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Portugal and China, in which she promised to respect the territorial integrity of China.

The Japs will not grab Manchuria and run. Their method isn't as obvious as that. Japan will create in Manchuria a government overtly for the restoration of order and protection of her nationals but covertly friendly to Japan. After that will naturally follow Japanese suzerainty over the region to make it first an appanage, then a part of Japan. What can the other eight powers in the nine-power treaty do about it if Japanese agents arrange for a Manchurian revolt against China within a few years which places in power a government which elects to annex the country to Japan? The United States for one stands for self-determination of nations.

All Of Us

Fifty Years From Now When I'm an Old Man Will I Say This?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

When I get to be an old, old man with a gray beard like Santa Claus—and perhaps a thumping round belly like his, too—when I'm so old that I have only a few friends from my youth remaining and I dream wistfully of the quaint old days of 1919—when I'm just an old soldier cogitating and reminiscing about the war—and when I'm so old that I've acquired privileges just by virtue of being old—and I've gained the reputation of being wise just because I've managed to cling so long, like a last leaf, to my wintry bough—and all that's left of me is a good laugh (I hope)—when I'm that old, as I say, if some young fellow with a few shreds of respect for my gray beard should ask of me, "What's the best way to be happy, Grandfather?'

* * *

Then this, I hope, is what I'll have sense enough to say:

"Well, son, let life do things to you. Let it roll you over like a great wave on the seashore. Dive through it and come up sputtering and laughing and shouting. Take it easy, but find it bracing.

"Have a good time, but don't hurt people while you're doing it. Keep your enjoyments within the boundaries of kindness and consideration. Don't say to yourself: 'Is this a sin?' Say, instead, 'Will this make anyone unhappy?"

"But don't struggle too hard for that good time. I've found that the best fun I ever got out of life was unpremeditated. Sometimes I walked along without any grim determination to be happy, but ready for whatever came—and things did happen. Fun came to me around unexpected corners and life rolicked like an exuberant puppy, when I least expected that sort of thing; and the best moments in my life have been the surprises. The moments when I tried too hard were the ones that left me nothing to tuck away forever in my memory.

"Don't even try to follow my advice. Just fix up a few don'ts—just a minimum supply—for yourself and stick to them pretty closely, and you'll have laugh wrinkles around your eyes and people'll like you and you won't need to be disgusted with yourself."

* * *

And maybe—if I say that sort of thing to some young fellow in 1981—he won't walk off and leave me talking to myself. And life will still be fun.

Once Overs

MOODS

It is well to be cheerful but to be in one mood all the time is tiresome as a companion.

The person who is smiling all the time smacks of insincerity for it is not possible for a human being to feel like smiling perpetually.

An older person who smiles continually gives the impression of having never assumed burdens which normal persons must accept.

In the younger person the beholder worries if he or she has realized the seriousness of life and will ever "settle down."

Perhaps you desire to be the hail-fellow-well-met sort and so you use the jovial care-free manner for effect.

In a workaday world there is too much of a serious nature to make it possible for a man or a woman to live absolutely overflowing with good nature.

Only the irresponsible, only those who refuse to accept their share of life's burdens can be jolly every minute.

Serious thought and sober moods are to be expected but it is not necessary to be in a melancholy, irritably nervous mood to be deep in problems.

An American visiting England got tired of being corrected on such English names as Sinjin (St. John), Chumley (Cholomondeley), Maudlin (Magdalen), and so forth, and he managed to get back at one of his correctors. "But surely," she said, "you must have heard of those marvelous falls, you know—near Buffalo, New York?"

"Oh," said the American, "I know what you mean now. But we don't call them Niagara Falls; we pronounce it Niffles."

Dear Fred: "Mystery," by Jerome Bell:

What is this mystery that men call death?
My friend before me lies in all save breath
He seems the same as yesterday.
His face so like to life, so calm, bears not a trace
Of that great change which all of us so dread.
I gaze on him and say: He is not dead,
But sleeps; and soon he will arise and take my hand.
I know he will awake and smile on me as yesterday;
And he will have some gentle word to say,
Some kindly deed to do; for loving thought
Was warp and woof of which his life was wrought.
He is not dead. Such souls forever live
In boundless measure of the love they give.

Take It or Leave It—The stuff that dreams are made of, usually comes off on your coat collar.

FIFTY BELOW ZERO IS REMARKABLE BUT ONE DEGREE ABOVE HARMS MANKIND LESS

If you are an ordinary man, say a bricklayer or a dentist and never have done anything to harm humanity you are more important and more deserving of honor than most of the great figures in history and many of those who now are called great.

That is not a far-fetched exaggeration prompted by class prejudice, but a sober statement of demonstrable truth.

There are but three classes of men: those who do good, those who do nothing and those who do harm.

The second class, comparatively small, consists of men who never do anything conspicuously good or conspicuously bad—who are so nearly neutral, so obscure or so withdrawn from life that they simply don't count.

Men of this class represent zero—the point from which all measurements up and down are made.

Men who are useful—who accomplish anything at all for the benefit of mankind—grade above zero and men who do anything to harm mankind grade below.

It follows, then, that the most humble and most obscure of useful men, though he accomplish nothing of more importance than the digging of sewer ditches, ranks above the evildoer as far as he ranks above zero plus the distance that the evildoer falls below it.

There are famous men, honored by the thoughtless, who achieve renown solely by reason of the evil they do.

A writer wins attention by the trick of denouncing established faiths and customs, and holds it by appealing to the crowd's fondness for invective and blistering epithets that hurt the other fellow.

He is destructive and harmful, for all his fame, and dies leaving the world more unhappy and discouraged and bitter than he found it.

Another man, a "great leader" uses men as pawns to achieve his own selfish ends, and for all his power and glory goes to his grave with no good to his credit and a path of wreckage behind him.

Men like these are called "great" but in the final accounting and by any logical standard of measurement, they rank far below the level of harmless nonentity.

The common man who respects them does himself an injustice.

Was the slave who sought renown by burning the temple of Diana of greater worth than the unknown masons who built it?

Muscle Shoals Controversy Revived By Official Report

Proposal To Lease Plant To Private Corporation Raises Old Issues, On Which It Is Predicted There Will Be Congressional Debate

Fireworks in Congress are expected over the report recently submitted by the commission appointed by President Hoover some months ago to study the question of ownership and operation of Muscle Shoals. Differences of opinion are as emphatic as ever and it is believed likely that the varying views will be strongly advanced during the session.

As to the political aspects of the matter, the Yakima Morning Herald says: "Despite the recommendation of the civil commission that the government lease Muscle Shoals to a private corporation, Senator Norris and his followers in both houses of Congress intend to press their demands again that the government take over and run the plants for the manufacture of fertilizer and the creation of electrical energy." Expressing its own viewpoint, this paper continues: "The people and the government would be well rid of the project if it were given outright to some private corporation, or if it were sold at a ridiculously low price. As long as the government retains ownership Muscle Soals will be a drain on the Treasury."

The WHEELING INTELLIGENCER, on the other hand, argues for public operation, stating: "As long as this plant is public property it should be operated for the public benefit. If it is to be operated for the public benefit, it must be under public control. If there is to be public control, why not take the frank and direct method of public operation?" This paper also indicts those who have handled the matter, stating: "A Government which is incapable of settling an issue of this kind in twelve years is incompetent. The waste and obstruction, the flagrant disregard of public welfare which marked the whole course of this Muscle Shoals fiasco, would be tolerated in no other country on earth."

Answering the suggestion that the President's commission was "packed," the MANCHESTER UNION points out that it was "composed of one representative of organized agriculture, two members of the War Department, and three members each appointed by the governors and legislatures of Alabama and Tennessee," contends that "a fairer choice could not have been made," and voices its belief that "obviously Alabama and Tennessee should have a preferred voice in the matter, and there is no reason why an organization of farmers should not be able to provide expert management for the enterprise."

This last reference is to the suggestion by the commission that the dam and nitrate plants be leased preferably to "a corporation exclusively owned and controlled by organizations of farmers, operated without profit." To this the BALTIMORE SUN answers: "Pity the farmer! The news that he, at least, is to be the goat in the Muscle Shoals problem must arouse pity if anything ever does. It is an ingenious notion, but a cruel one, from the farmers' standpoint." Holding the idea "in theory about half-way between public and private control," the SIOUX FALLS DAILY ARGUS-LEADER thinks that "the sensible solution of the Muscle Shoals business is the sale of the project to the highest bidder with proper restriction to protect the government in time of war," and contends that "if President Hoover drummed up enough courage to advocate such a plan, he would win considerable commendation and at the same time be doing a real service to the great nation which he heads."

The NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE describes the "government ownership lads," as having already "started beating the tom-toms and crying that the people's property is about to be given to the 'power trust.' There are moments," confesses The Tribune, "when one could only wish that it would be—for, if Muscle Shoals were only tied into a public utility system, somebody at any rate would get some real economic use out of it, a consummation which would appear to be improbable under any other arrangement."

Pointing out that "it is Senator Norris' contention that the commission has produced a 'power trust' plan, the ST. PAUL PIONEER PRESS asserts: "Whatever merit there is in Senator Norris' claims, it is clear that the commission's attempted compromise is not acceptable to the Congressional bloc which sponsored the Muscle Shoals bill vetoed by President Hoover. The end of the controversy is not yet in sight." The NEWARK EVENING NEWS sees "the champion white elephant" as having become "more gigantic as a result of this four months' study," and declares that "Muscle Shoals retains its headache character."

Declaring stoutly for private ownership, even against the recommended farmer ownership, the NEW YORK SUN argues: "There is not the slightest ground for supposing that any cumbersome, top-heavy aggregation of farmers can be expected to run the plants at Muscle Shoals as economically and efficiently as they could be operated by a first rate industrial corporation. * * * If such an organization as the commission favors can be formed, if it can take over the property without calling on the Government for subsidies, it should be favored only in the event that no competing industrial organization offers better terms. The SUN also expresses the belief that "tenuous as are public hopes that the United States may be about to get rid of this white elephant, those hopes are at least stronger because of the commission's findings."

The LOWELL EVENING LEADER, noting that "in order to put its recommendation into effect, the President must have the authority of Congress," affirms that "the committee's report does not settle the matter," and suggests that, as to the outcome, "much may depend on the influence which the Republican insurgent wing is able to exert," while the "advocates of public ownership and operation will use every means in their power to advance their ideas."

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

ELY AT THE BRIDGE

Young Culbertson, of Broadway,
By the nine gods he swore
That he could take with 13 cards
Eight tricks or nine or more.
By the nine gods he swore it,
Such was his style of play
That messengers he hurried forth,
East and west and south and north,
To teach the better way.

East and west and south and north
Were contract lessons hurled
Until it seemed their thundering shook
The peace of all the world.
Men quarreled at their luncheon,
And women angry grew
Defending gallant Culbertson
Whose forcing bid was "two."

World-wide began a counting
Of honor tricks in hand,
A new and curious language
Like plague went through the land.
And many a dame to learn it
Went out and pawned a brooch
To buy a book explaining
The Culbertson approach.

O'er four-card suits men pondered
As parsons o'er a text,
This was the nation's problem:
Which suit shall I bid next?
While women struggled bravely
To get their lessons learned
Full many a pot boiled over
And many a steak was burned.

When age shall end the carnage
And time our strength de-flower,
When cards no more shall lure us
To pass the luncheon hour,
When comes the perfect system,
Still shall the tale be told
How Culbertson taught contract bridge
In the brave days of old.

Some story in his life that is worth telling.

More worth within himself than he has yet realized.

At least one piece of work to do that no one else on earth can do.

Some burden no one on earth can help him bear.

CAME 5,000 MILES TO ATTEND SCHOOL HERE

(International News Service)

SEEKING TO IDENTIFY YOUNG GIRL'S SKULL

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Dec. 4.—Police today sought to identify a young girl's skull, found in a vacant lot here and treated to appear as though it had been buried for years.

The skull, said Dr. Livingston Anderson, pathologist, was of a girl about 18 years old. She had been dead five or six months, he estimated.

The bones had been treated with a chemical to give an appearance of having been buried for some time. The bones were uncovered by small boys at play.

So 65 per cent. of human knowledge is gained through the eyes. Leaving only 35 per cent. to gain through keyholes.

AUTOIST RIVALS BUNYAN EFFORTS

BIG STONE CITY, Minn., Dec. 4.—The residents here compared George Volkenant, of Bellingham to Paul Bunyan, of pioneer mythology, after he had thrown a cow from Minnesota to South Dakota recently.

The cow, one of a herd, was on the road in front of Volkenant's automobile. The cow was thrown from the road by the machine. Later testimony revealed that the cow had been hit in Minnesota but had fallen in South Dakota.

Music Lovers Await Concert

"The Messiah" Rehearsals Promise Public Superb Free Performance

OFFERING GIFTS WILL AID NEEDY

Time was drawing nearer today for the benefit presentation of the Christmas oratorio, "The Messiah," to be given by a cast of over 100 volunteer musicians of the city in the Cathedral auditorium next Sunday.

Director John E. Paton today announced that rehearsals have been most encouraging, and that New Castle's music lovers will find it well worth their time on Sunday afternoon to attend the impressive concert.

Announcement was made today by the committee directing arrangements that a group of the city's most talented soloists have donated their services for the program.

Boy Scouts will assist with the ushering during the afternoon, passing programs and attending to any details that may arise. Scoutmaster Edwin Schmid's boys of Troop 17, First Presbyterian church, have given assurance that they will be present for duty.

Everything Donated

With the exception of a nominal fee for the use of the Cathedral auditorium, every other item will be donated. The singers of the cast have purchased their own copies of "The Messiah" in order that as much money as possible may be poured into the coffers of the Mayor's Relief Fund, to which the net proceeds will go.

An offering is to be lifted during the service, but no admission will be charged.

Instrumentalists, probably the finest New Castle has produced, will also donate their services to make the concert a success.

FIVE DEER ARE CARRIED BY PARTY

Late yesterday afternoon, an auto was observed being driven through the downtown section, in which was a party of four men, while strapped to the running board on either side and in front, were five deer.

Many deer were brought back yesterday by local hunters, and most everywhere one turned, he could see a machine with one or more deer strapped to it.

A University of Chattanooga sociology student experimentally solicited alms from 200 passers-by and collected only fifteen cents, which goes to show that there is more to panhandling than casual observers imagine.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LISTS CHARGES IN SUIT AGAINST WIFE

BRAZIL, Ind., Dec. 4.—In a suit for divorce on file here, John H. Boyle charges Elizabeth Boyle with cruel and inhuman treatment, listing the following charges:

She accused him of misconduct.

She refused to cook his meals.

She forced him from the house while he was sick.

He decided to file the suit, he said, when she forced him to remove the body of his first wife from his lot at a cemetery so that she might be buried there herself.

The furnace which exploded at Washington, Pa., and blew a man through the side of the house must have been a blast furnace.—Ann Arbor News.

THEY FOUND OUT

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4—Two amazing stories of 'thrill seekers" were revealed here when a man and a woman were treated in Los Angeles hospitals. His habit of tasting things in the hotel kitchen where he was a cook caused Alex Salmonson to be treated for strychinine poisoning. Her desire to know what 'chloroform would do if she smelled it" caused 17-year old Dorothy Pelton to be taken to a hospital, unconscious. Both "thrill seekers" recovered.

Today's Anniversary.

On this day, in 1861, congress chartered the Pacific Telegraph company, which shortly thereafter blazed its way across the plains carrying telegraph communication to the far west.

Today's Horoscope.

Answers to Foregoing Questions.

1. The ordinary clay tobacco pipe has been in use since 1820.

2. The wave length is approximately 3.28 feet, or one meter.

3 .The visit to Vancouver, British Columbia, of the late President Harding was the first and only time an American president has been in the Dominion during his term of office.

Conceited Person Bane To Community, Say Yale Authors

By GENE K. LORICK
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 4.—"Superiority and inferiority are closely related to each other.

Those are but two of the many conclusions reached by two eminent Yale University professors in their jointly authorized book, "The Craving for Superiority".

Professor Raymond Dodge, professor of psychology, and Professor Eugene Kahn, former director of the psychopatcic clinic in Munich, Germany, and now professor of psychiatry and mental hygiene at Yale, wrote their new book from the viewpoint of both the psychologist and the psychiatrist.

According to them, the craving for superiority is inherent in each individual and probably has its origin in the impulse for self-preservation. They saw "superiority and inferiority as intimately related to each other—only one at the very bottom of a distribution of a trait (such as height, weight, wisdom or the capacity to work) is superior to nobody. Conversely, only one at the very top is inferior to none. The great majority of mankind is to be found between these two extremes. Each one is both inferior and superior at the same time—superior to those below and inferior to those above him."

The vagabond on the street may feel inferior to the tenement dweller and so on up the social ladder, but on the other side the vagabond may, at least occasionally enjoy his actual or apparent freedom with the feeling of superiority and may feel very superior when he beats up a fellow waif or, still better, a policeman and gets his name in the newspaper, the authors wrote.

Many normal individuals, said Doctors Dodge and Kahn, find short cuts to their desired goal of superiority such as "vicarious identification with prominent persons or heroes; susceptibility to flattery; arbitrary exclusion of criticism by emotional outbursts or withdrawal from a critical environment; exhibitions of various orders from club oratory to scientific productivity, from scratching one's initials in prominent places, to poetry."

Conceited persons range from those who whistle the arias or tell the plot of the opera, to the blase "student" whom every lecture bores, for whom every library book presents an opportunity for pencilled derisive comments, the authors state.

The conceited person, the two professors discovered, "knows just how each crisis in economic and political affairs should be remedied, just what panacea would cure the ills of our civilization. Sometimes he is a millionaire, publicist, professor, prime minister or dictator, when he may do more damage than a whole generation of wisdom can repair. Always he is a misfortune to the community as long as he remains an ass and is conceited."

Wee Lunch Room To Hide One Yale Facade

(International News Service)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 4.—One facade of the new Davenport college dormitory group at Yale will be hidden for some time to come behind a wee lunch room. The structure stands on York street, close to the Yale theatre and opposite the vast memorial quadrangle, because its owner has refused all of Yale's offers to buy his lease.

Yale faced the same sort of situation in buildings its Sterling library. A four-story narrow student boarding house then was in the way. The library was built all around it, blocking windows on three sides. Its owner capitulated finally but before the library was done, and today its site is not apparent.

With the lunch room in the way, Yale builders simply plan to use its site as a bit of lawn to set off the facade of the Davenport dormitories. Yale will take the property when the lunch room lease runs out, a couple of years from now.

MUST OBEY LAW AT SCHOOL ZONES

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4.—A continuing campaign against motor vehicle operators who violate speed regulations while running in school zones is being conducted by the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol, Captain Wilson C. Price, superintendent of the patrol, warns motorists.

The State Vehicle Code requires operators to slow down to 15 miles an hour while driving between signs designating school zones. Court rulings have been that this speed limit must be observed at all hours whether school is in session or otherwise.

Patrolmen have been instructed to strictly enforce the law and to arrest operators who violate it. The Department of Revenue intends to go the limit in protecting the school children of the State from the careless motorist.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4.—A careless motorist plus a burning cigar or cigaret stump carelessly tossed from a motor vehicle can easily result in a disastrous forest fire is the warning sounded by Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

"Motor vehicle operators and other occupants of motor vehicles should not throw lighted cigar or cigarets onto the highway," Commissiner Eynon said, "It is a bad habit at any time of the year. It is a dangerous one right now and can easily result in great property damage and loss of life—both human and animal.

"A gutter or the side of a roadway filled with dry leaves, a burning cigar or cigaret falling into the leaves and a high wind is a combination that may easily start a fire in any nearby forest. We are constantly preaching safety in relation to human life. Now let's have some regard for our beautiful forests and their animal life."

Scientist Finds Marriage Cures Many Heart Ills

Mental Abession Of Heart Frequently Produces Trouble

By Alfred Tyrnauer
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(International News Service)

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—"Marriage is a cure for all sorts of imaginary ailments of the heart," said Prof. E. F. Wenkenbach, one of the most famous Austrian heart specialists in a treatise which, though couched in scientific language and thought contains some sound advice to the lovelorn.

Prof. Wenbach did not go so far as other scientists and assert that love is a minor disease of the heart, which might be cured by marriage. But he did insist that the number of singel men and women who believe they are suffering from some one or another disease of the heart is far greater than ordinarily supposed.

In fact, he said, the mental obsession of heart disease frequently produces pathological symptoms when in reality the seemingly afflicted are suffering from no organic ailment whatever. The heart disease complex he said has made mental and physical wrecks of many people who then actually developed palpitation of the heart and convulsions.

The treatment of such imaginary heart patients is often very difficult. Regular and peaceful life, combined with pyschological treatment is the best method, and that is why Professor Wenkebach advises matrimony for them.

Married life means regularity, the learned profressor declared. But does it necessarily mean tranquility?

EAGLE FOUND DEAD, IS GIVEN TO SCHOOL

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 4.—An American golden eagle, found dead in the hills near New Berlinville by Leroy Bauer, taxidermist has been donated by Bauer to the Boyertown high school.

Sparks From New Castle Motor Club

UNNECESSARY HURRYING IS BREEDER OF ACCIDENTS

Unnecessary hurrying is one of the greatest breeders of accidents. This is especially true during the winter season when conditions on the streets and highways make it essential that users exercise maximum care. It cannot be done when it is necessary to take small chances in order to reach the home or office. The chance-taking applies to motorists and pedestrains alike.

It is impossible to tell just how many accidents may be traced to the individual's failure to adjust the time for travel between the home and office, store or plant, to the changed conditions of winter. Streets are slippery and the weather is cold, making for more difficult handling of the car, and the temptation of pedestrains is to rush ahead regardless of traffic. These factors seem to conspire to add to unsafe conditions at this season of the year.

The American Automobile Association says that the remedy is plainly to take more time. In this day when business has pushed the residential sections further out it is almost imperative.

If thirty minutes are required for the daily trips during the summer months, why not make it forty-five for winter? This additional time may mean a difference much more significant than that denoted on the face of the watch. It will make hurrying unnecessary and bear fruit in the form of greater safety.

An excellent route to an Early End—passing a car on a hill!

Let's have the policy cooperation.

The temptation to speed at 45 to 50 miles per hour through our city streets has caused the arrest of a number of motorists.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS FIND MOTOR CLUB MEMBERSHIPS TO BE PRACTICAL GIFTS

With Christmas shoppers more and more turning to practical gifts, motor club memberships are finding favor as a holiday present that may be enjoyed by an entire family, according to Ralph W. Bolsinger, President of the New Castle Motor Club, which is affilated with the American Automobile Association.

Mr. Bolsinger declared that the growing interest in gifts that preserve the Yuletide spirit throughout the year has resulted in the A. A. A. creating a special Christmas package.

"The large number of shiney new A. A. A. emblems on cars after the holiday period," he said, "are testimonials to the popularity of this gift. It is not unusual to find motorists busy on Christmas Day attaching this badge of motordom to the radiator of the family car. In addition, the membership card assures service for 365 days a year. Aside from being an individual gift, it is also a community one, in that it helps to build a service agency of increasing value to car owners. Such a gift reflects a desire on the part of motorists for relatives and friends to receive the benefits they have found to be indispensable.

This club and others affiliated with the A. A. A. accepts the Christmas membership as a definite tribute to the motor club's service program, Mr. Bolsinger added.

Gasoline tax evasions reach into the millions.

We are opposed to tinkering with the gas tax.

Use Tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

You can use your 1932 license tags on and after December 15th.

When getting on or off buses, keep your eyes on the traffic.

The Columbia Bridge, on the Lincoln Highway, opened on October 31st, 1930. Since that date the average daily toll collected amounts to $1001.00.

Cars may be considerably different these days, but it still is necessary to advance the hand throttle when starting a cold engine.

Your motor needs extra care in cold weather.

Be very cautious when traveling on the new highway between Trenton and New York. The fine and costs usually amount to $27.50.

ARM SIGNALS

When in driving along a street or highway you mean to stop, turn left or right give a clear signal to the operator in back of you. Realizing that if everyone would do this, many accidents could be averted and motoring would be safer and more pleasant for all concerned, the Club sets forth herewith arm signals it recommends that drivers adopt.

If a driver of a car in front of you puts out his arm, what does he intend to do? All you know is that he is going to do something. Why not let us institute our own Campaign for an arm signal that means something, and then find out what to do with the fellow who gives no signal at all. To correct the first evil, let us ourselves start the following:

1. Drop your arm down for a stop or slow signal.
2. Place your left arm at right angles with your body for a right turn.
3. Extend the left arm straight out for a left-hand turn.
4. Throw your signal one hundred feet or more before you make your turn.

For the second evil, report to your Club Office the license number of every driver who fails to give a signal for a right or left turn, or a slow or stop signal.

Many lives could be saved and much property damage loss avoided if we would only observe this simple system of signalling to the driver coming from the rear.

An A. A. A. member said:

I wish to express my thanks and appreciation for my towing bill that you recently paid, and also for the service in settlement of my personal injury. The claim growing out of the accident on November 6th. I shall always be a booster for the Club.

A Christmas suggestion—Membership in the New Castle Motor Club.

BARRYMORE'S BEAR NEEDS NEW HOME

(International News Service)

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 4.—Does anyone want a bear? If so, let him or her apply to the Fall River city fathers who have a bear on their hands which they would like to have removed.

The bear, Oscar by name, was the gift of Ethel Barrymore, famous dramatic actress, who presented the animal to the city when she lived in Bristol, Rd., on the Colt estate, following her marriage to a son of the late Samuel P. Colt.

Oscar has been confined in a cage on the Fall River reservation where a number of hens, pigeons, pheasan's, and a horse, all owned by persons living on the reservation, are quartered. Now all wildlife on the reservation must go, according to edict of the Watuppa Water Board.

CALIFORNIA OPENS WAR ON PAIR OF ENEMIES

BERKELEY, Dec. 4.—War against two enemies of horticulture— the walnut fly and the pear blight—has been declared by University of California scientists.

Dr. H. S. Smith, conqueror of the mealy bug, has left for the east in search of an insect that will kill off the walnut fly in the same way a species of lady beetle found in Australia has reduced the mealy bug.

To do research in the field of pear blight control, Dr. Harvey E. Thomas of Cornell will come to the university this winter. His experiments will be conducted under a $15,000 appropriation made by the legislature following a particularly severe outbreak of pear blight.

Coast Blast Is Fatal To Youth, Fifty-Five Hurt

Gas Explosion In Burning Home At Berkeley, California, Injures By-Standers

WARNING TO FLEE COMES TOO LATE

(International News Service)

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 4.—Rocking the entire district, a gas explosion killed one person, here, injured fifty-five others, wrecked one house, caved in the side wall of an adjoining one and hurled blazing timbers for blocks.

The blast occurred while firemen were battling a fire in the basement of a house in the residential district. The explosion was caused when the flames melted a pipe line and ignited the gas.

Boy Is Killed

Sherman Pepper, 16, son of Professor Stephen Pepper of the University of California, was killed as he stood outside watching the firemen. His body was buried in the wreckage of the house.

Three firemen, including Chief George Haggerty, were reported to be in a critical condition today from injuries. Fourteen others were seriously injured and thirty-eight others were so badly hurt that they required hospital attention.

Chief Haggerty first detected the odor of escaping gas and immediately gave orders that veryone vacate the house. It was too late, however, and a moment later the terrific blast tore the house to pieces and left the dead and injured either trapped in the wreckage or the house or on the nearby sidewalks.

Children Injured

Among the injured were University of California students, well-known residents of Berkeley and ten children.

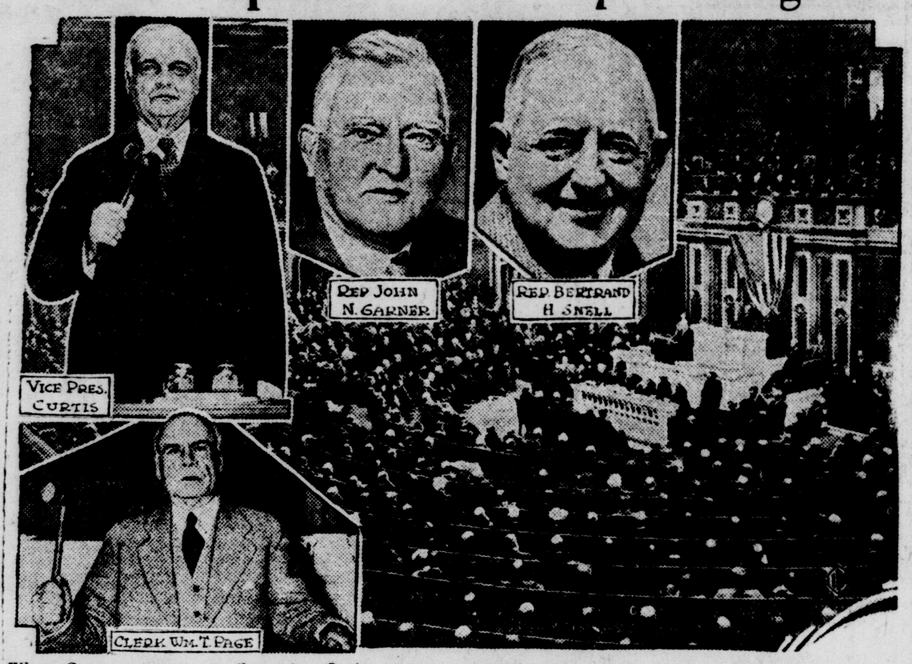
Clerk "Speaker" Will Open Congress



When Congress opens on December 7 the unique experience of being "king for a day" will be enjoyed by Clerk William T. Page, whose gavel will call the House to order pending the election of a Speaker to fill the position left vacant by the death of Nicholas Longworth. Vice-President Charles Curtis will preside in the Senate. The first business of the House will be to determine whether the Republican candidate, Bertrand H. Snell, or the Democrat, John H. Garner, will be the next Speaker. The present Democratic strength of the House, however, indicates the almost certain election of Garner.

PROUD OF PHONOGRAPH

(International News Service)

LA JOLLA, Calif.—An old-fashioned phonograph with a wooden horn the size of a water barrel given to him by Thomas A. Edison is one of the prize possessions of Walt Mason, author . Edison presented the talking machine to Mason 20 years ago when one of the poet's verses particularly pleased the inventor. "Edison's favorite record, 'I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen,' accompanied the gift phonograph," Mason said. The rhymester probably is America's most avid collector of phonograph records. He has a library of several thousand musical disks in his home here, and adds to the collection almost daily.

Santa's Prevue Display Of Toys Being Examined By Hundreds Of Children

With Christmas just three weeks away, hundreds of youngsters are looking over this prevue display to see for themselves just what Santa has to offer this year. And are they particular about their choices? Rather! They know just exactly what they want and if the toys do not measure up to their standards, they get the haughty go-by. Here is the situation summed up by a local merchant, who after years of experience, knows:

"Children are, I am certain, the most critical and exacting customers we have. Although they don't do the actual buying, they have everything to say, of course. And let me tell you, they don't gape at the tops in wide eyed delirious wonder. No siree. They cooly lead their mothers into Toyland in a business like manner, then set to work examining each doll, each dump truck and bestow their favors in a shrewd, calculating manner, with very definite reasons in their little minds.

"Boys and girls are insistent that toys be up-to-date," he adds, smiling, "In order to appeal to the boys this year a fire truck must be the very latest model and with 1932 license plates attached. And to the little girl the doll really should be wearing a Princess Eugenie!"

As for the type of toys offered this year, they are not very different from last year and the year before that. There are dolls of all sizes, all colored toupees; miniature vehicles; teddy bears; puzzle games; and carpenter sets.

One thing noticeable is the decided influence the national heroes, Babe Ruth, Bobby Jones and Charles Lindbergh have on the toy offerings, there are scores of baseball games, bullet belts, guns and holsters, miniature golf outfits and snappy seaplanes on display.

OLD GRIST MILL CHANGES HANDS

SUNBURY, Pa., Dec. 4.—One of the few remaining mills operated by water-wheel, and the oldest grist mill in Northumberland county, has been purchased by W. C. Boyers, supervisor of Lower Augusta township. It was sold at auction as part of the estate of the late Daniel DeWitt.

DeWitt operated the mill for 50 years, using the power developed by a small stream.

Stored up in a pool, the water was led by a mill race to the big water wheel, over which it tumbled in a 20-foot drop.

COUNT ENJOYS JOB OF DRIVING A TAXI

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Driving a taxicab is one of the strangest hobbies that has yet been adopted in the French capital. Comte de Pradere, formerly Spanish Minister to the Hague, is doing it "just for fun."

He bought his nice red taxi last month and declares that up to the present time he is delighted with his new job as chauffeur. Not only are his earnings very satisfactory, and this, by the way, he turns completely over to the poor, for he has no real need of money, but the Count is finding lots of entertainment in his trade.

He begins work about ten in the morning and continues on until noon when he lunches at his club, leaving the taxi-cab at the door with the little flag turned down. From one o'clock until six in the evening he plies around for fares and then has a good dinner and goes out for the evening.

Comte de Pradere says the most difficult thing for him to grow accustomed to in this new business is the tipping practice!

Woman Is Held In Denmark For Killing Mother

Mrs. Elsie Wille, 32, Held In Copenhagen, Administered Overdose To Mother

KILLED MOTHER TO END SUFFERING

(International News Service)

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 4—Authorities were confronted today with a legal and moral puzzle in the case of Mrs. Elsie Willie 32 year old daughter of the late Baroness Anna Von Duben, who confessed that she killed her mother to prevent her from committing suicide.

Charged with murder, Mrs. Wille declared her conscious was clear and told police she was not troubled by the consequences of her act, believing there was no inherent wrong in what she had done.

Her mother had been seriously ill for years, Mrs. Wille said, and had once tried to take her own life to end her suffering. The Baroness had been taking a drug to relieve her pain and an overdose of the drug finally caused her death.

Despite Mrs. Wille's confession, it was understood her relatives in arranging for her defense, would plead that she was not legally responsible for her mother's death, having administered the fatal does of the drug only at the request of the Baroness.

Six Cases Of Bombs Sent To Japanese Firm Seized In Police Raid At Harbin

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 4—Police at Harbin, Manchuria, in a raid on a railroad warehouse today, seized six cases containing 144 bombs, which had been assigned to a Japanese firm, according to a Harbin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

It was stated similar cases had been arriving at Harbin daily during the past month. The bombs were manufactured at the Mukden arsenal, which the Japanese seized from the Chinese in September.

An exchange telegraph message from Tokyo today carried an official denial that any Japanese soldiers had arrived in Harbin, the report was said to have been based upon the arrival in Harbin of a party of Tokyo boy scouts on a sight seeing expedition.

PRESERVING EGGS

One quart water glass, 10 quarts water, fifteen dozen eggs. In the early spring or fall, when eggs are plentiful and at their best, pack them away for future use. Use strictly fresh eggs with perfect shells. Buy water glass at drug store. Boil water, when cool add water glass and beat well. Use an eight-gallon stone jar, pack eggs in rows and pour over the liquid mixture to cover well. Place old plate over eggs in crock to keep them two or three inches under water. Put cover on jar and keep in cool place. More eggs may be added at any time if well covered with the liquid mixture.

I WAS CAUGHT NAPPING

Folks, you sure caught me napping the day before Thanksgiving. Our sales exceeded my expectations so far that we were completely swamped. Why at times during the day there wasn't even any available standing room for my friends. I had a force of 10 salespeople that worked 46 hours out of 48 preparing for you. You know I just started here the 14th of last March and I have many things to learn. We sold 832 chickens, 162 turkeys, 80 ducks and 9 geese. A few of my friends got a little angry with me because they didn't get the service they expected and I sincerely apologize and I'll bet you won't catch me napping again. My father has been connected with the provision business in New Castle for 45 years and he says that, that was the first time in the history of New Castle that any one store sold over 1100 head of poultry and he says he is not surprised because my method of handling poultry is so far superior to the old methods that one can eat poultry that comes from my market, and be sure that it is clean and has not been allowed to roam around and pick up any old thing to eat. Now, folks, be careful you don't get caught napping. Come to our market where you get an honest dollar's worth for an honest dollar.

Well Bill Kerber run onto another bunch of lambs this week out on Bill McPherson's farm and he made a deal with Bill and he's got those little butter balls nicely dressed and ready for you, and he's got nice home dressed calves aplenty. You know you can't beat home dressed and home grown provisions. If we could buy good beef in this vicinity we would do it but you know the farmers have all been herded into the dairy business by a lot of slick tongued fellows and now they're getting just what they want to give them for milk because there is a monopoly in the milk business the same as in every other line. We are trying to encourage the farmers to get into a more diversified line so their farms will have the same ratio of earning power as other industries have enjoyed for the past 10 years, that's part of our contribution toward farm relief. We realize the responsibility our city friends have placed in us also, that is the reason we're always scouting around to find good things to eat at prices you like to pay.

American Bridge League Elects

R. E. Needham, Of Greenville, Is Elected As Treasurer Of League

BARON ZEDTWITZ NAMED PRESIDENT

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—Four different nationalities today were represented in the newly elected group of officers of the American Bridge League. The elections were held as the play in the fifth annual national bridge tournament in progress here was interrupted for a brief business meeting.

The new officers are: Baron Waldemar Von Zedtwitz, a native of Germany, president; Sir Derrick Warner, a former Britisher, vice president; William McKenney, of Irish descent, re-elected secretary; and R. E. Needham, of Greenville, Pa., treasurer.

The auction bridge competition was completed on Wednesday and the competition now engaging the contestants is contract. Pair championship play occupies the afternoon sessions, while team-of-four play consumes the evening hours. The tourney draws to a conclusion Saturday evening.

Meeting Scheduled

Another business meeting is scheduled for today when the proposal of George Reith, of New York, that the league admit bridge clubs as well as individuals to membership, will be discussed. E. J. Tobin, of Chicago, prominent in bridge circles, has been admitted to honorary membership in the league and Mrs. F. E. W. Bright, of Detroit was elected president of the associate or women members. Mrs. P. H. Sims, of Deal, N. J., was elected vice president.

The team-of-four headed by P. H. "Hal" Sims, of Deal, appeared to hold the upper hand in the competition today, while Sims and his partner, Willard Karn, of New York, are second in the pair championships. President-elect Baron Von Zedtwitz and Walter Malowan led the pairs division as play was resumed today.

Sims, considered one of the most formidable players in the world, depends a great deal on superstition. He appears daily with a bag of peanuts and wearing an old wrinkled suit of clothes which he dares not be without during the championship play.

Evangelist Inspired Grenfell Work

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—Sir Wilfred Grenfell was inspired to start the work which has made him famous as the "good angel of Labrador" by hearing the celebrated evangelists, Moody and Sankey, in London.

Sir Wilfred made this revelation in describing his work in the far north since his first trip in 1892. Among his achievements are listed the equipping of five hospitals, the establishing of four boarding schools, the setting up of the first wireless station, and an aerial survey of the country.

He made it plain there was no personal sacrifice involved in his going to Labrador. He said he did the work because he wanted to do it—because of his great belief that "the making of the world is in ourselves," and because he "wanted to make two things grow where one grew before."

REWARD PAID FOR EXPLODING BOMB

MARION, Ill., Dec. 4.—When a bomb was found on the porch of the home of Shannon Holland, president of the defunct First National bank, Marion, authorities were undecided as to what to do with the infernal machine.

The county board of supervisors decided to offer a $10 reward to anyone who would destroy the bomb without destroying life or property.

Monroe Owen applied for the job and took the bomb into an orchard. Placing it in the fork of a tree, he walked back several paces and fired a shotgun at it. The shot exploded the bomb and scattered tree and earth beneath for a considerable distance, but he won the reward.

GETS SENT DOWN, ON SILO ROOF

(International News Service)

IONA, Mich., Dec. 4.—"I'm guilty," said "Joe Doe" as he handed John Balderson, justice of the peace, the ticket he had received from state troopers for a traffic violation.

"All right," the judge smiled "I'll send you down instead of up. The fine is $2."

At that the ticket holder climbed down out of the silo "court" where he had found the justice at work. "Doe" had found Balderson painting the roof of the silo on his farm when he arrived and so, not wishing to disturb the work, "Doe" had climbed up.

TROOP NO. 18

The Highland U. P. Church Boy Scout Troop No. 18 held its weekly meeting Tuesday evening at the church with Assistant Scoutmaster T. P. Smathers present. Troop Committeemen Martin and Fehl were also present. Scoutmaster W. H. Mott was away deer hunting.

During the early part of the meeting, Scout Executive H. G. Horton and Commissioner Ralph F. Davis visited the troop. Mr. Davis led the boys in a very interesting game. He placed pennies on the boys' toes and they had a race from one side of the room to the other. Each of the contestants, if one or both of his pennies fell off, had to go back and start over. There were 3 teams in the race. The result were first team eight points, second team six points, and third team 4 points.

The following tests were passed: Second Class Compass by Bud Wharton, Donald Porteous; Second Class Signalling by Edward Wilson and Dick Hoffmeister; and part of the tenderfoot tests were passed by D. Cunningham and J. Kaplan. Jack Carroll received instruction on his second compass.

The meeting was closed with the regular ceremonies.

Coast Awaits Mighty Armada Next Spring

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—A mighty armada of fighting ships will be concentrated in San Francisco bay next spring, when almost the entire United States navy weighs anchor.

The ships are due here between April 24 and May 11. There will be at least 150 vessels, 300 air-craft and 37,000 officers and men.

As a part of the annual maneuvers and "war game," the combined fleets of the Atlantic and the Pacific will converge on San Francisco before "battling" for possession of the Hawaiian Islands.

Admiral Frank Schofield, who recently took office as commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet, will be in charge.

Extensive aircraft maneuvers will also be staged, according to officials at Twelth District Naval headquarters here.

A fleet of 24 coastal patrol planes will fly from Panama to San Diago, a distance of 3,000 miles, early in February.

The continuation school enrollment dropped from 21,461 in September, 1930 to 13,677 in September, 1931, a decrease of 7784 or 36.2 percent.

Boosting Mooney Pardon Plea

False Stories Are Circulated About Relief Here

Local Charitable Organizations Are Not Turning Down Any Who Are Needy

Work of local relief organizations is being hampered at the present time, by stories which are being circulated falsely, in regard to persons being refused assistance, officers of the American Red Cross and Associated Charities stated today.

Many applications for assistance are made, which when investigated, reveal the fact that the applicants are not actually in need of the assistance asked for, because there are many more who are in far worse circumstances.

Oftentimes, such people maliciously circulate stories that they have been refused assistance.

Officers of both organizations stated today that they are not refusing assistance to any persons who are in actual need of help.

There are many families in New Castle, as well as other cities, who are perpetual beggars. They do not make any effort to work when working conditions are good, being content to live on what little they can get from charitably inclined people and the assistance rendered them is as little as possible.

People who hear stories of this kind, should go to the organizations criticised and learn the circumstances. They will sometimes be astonished at the information they will receive.

Motion To Strike Off Writ, Granted

Judge Chambers Hands Down Opinion In Case Of Wallett Against Dry Cleaning Company

In the case of John S. Wallett against the Fish Dry Cleaning Company, Judge James A. Chambers handed down an opinion today in which a motion to strike off the sheriff's return of a writ of mandamus, was granted.

The case was one growing out of an automobile accident when the Wallett car and a truck of the dry cleaning company, collided near Conneaut Lake. Suit was brought by Wallett against the Dry Cleaning Company for $1,844 damages.

When the sheriff's return of service of the writ was made, the defense raised the objection that the Fish Dry Cleaning Company is an Ohio corporation, and had not been incorporated here, and for that reason the summons was void.

Attorneys for Wallett announce that other papers will be served.

BUZZARDS BAY STUDY NEAR COMPLETION

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The tide and current survey of Buzzards Bay, Mass., being undertaken by the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, is now nearing completion, according to R. S. Patton, director. The party consists of four officers and some 24 assistants.

To insure an exceptionally accurate picture of water movements in this locality, over 25 automatic tide guage stations were established. These stations were operated day and night, recording the rise and fall of the tide, and included stations at Penikese Island, Monument Beach, Marion, South Dartmouth, and New Bedford. The field party has also oserved the ebb and flow of the tidal current at over 109 selected stations in the Bay.

When received at the Washington office, the field records will be checked, tabulated, analyzed and discussed, and then issued as a special publication to safeguard navigation in this important waterway. The data is likewise invaluable for engineering and sewerage disposal, and for other works of a public nature.

GOOSE SPARED FROM MENU, NOW MARY'S PET

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 4.—"Mary had a little lamb"—of course, almost every child knows that but the familiar rhyme must be changed. At least at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archer McDonald.

Because Mary Frances their two-year old daughter, has a goose whose feathers are as white as snow, and then too, everywhere that Mary goes that fowl is sure to go.

The goose seems to sense that it owes its life to Mary. It all happened last Thanksgiving day. The goose was bought for the purpose of being the main item on the McDonald menu. The child became attached to the goose and the family decided that it would spare the ax and the goose would be Mary's pet.

And since that day, the goose, whose name is Pete, flops his wings and screeches if the child and her father do not take him on their afternoon walks. If Mary stops to talk to some of her little playmates, Pete stops too and stands close by.

American patriots bravely speak their mind concerning Orientals. The Orientals don't vote and their patronage doesn't amount to much.

Councilmen To Start Preparing '32 Budget In Next Few Weeks

As soon as tax duplicates for 1932 have been written members of city council will convene in budget session and prepare appropriations for the operation of the municipal government next year.

According to informal expressions made by present councilmen economy will be the watchword when they set down to make the appropriations. No large appropriations for new equipment are contemplated.

Assessors clerks today stated that all of the tax duplicates for 1932, excepting the Second ward, have been almost completed. The Second ward duplicates will not be written completely until January.

In arriving at the taxation to be derived from all of the wards, it was stated by a councilman that the 1931 tax returns from the Second ward would be used as a basis for the revenue to be derived from that section.

One of the minor improvements which the city would like to make during the coming year is the proposed extension of Butler avenue from Taylor to East Washingtotn street.

Recently it was indicated in a meeting of council that the receiver for the P. H. B. & N. C. railway may deed over the 20 foot right of way to the city. These negotiations, it is reported, are under way.

Council would also like to resurface some thoroughfares and alleys. Some of them are in need of repairs but until the amount of taxation which is to be derived can be learned, council can not forecast improvements.

There has been no indication on the part of present solons on the reports that wages will be adjusted. Definite information will not be known about 1932 plans until the budget meeting actually gets under way.

College Lessens Marriage Hopes? Listen To These

Become Conceited And Forget Boy Back Home

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Just how much does a girl decrease her chances of being married by going to college?

This question is debatable and various opinions have been forwarded. However, Roy N. Anderson, personnel investigator at Teachers' College, Columbia University, has accumulated figures showing that 20 per cent fewer girl graduates marry than women who have only a high school education.

"If I had to make a choice between marriage and teaching," declared Cecelia Allen, also of Teacher's College, "I would prefer teaching."

John Colwell varsity football player thought differently. "Yes, college girls do decrease their chances of marrying. They become too conceited and forget the sterling qualities of the boy back home and fall for the city slicker type," he explained.

David Graff saw other reasons for girls going to school. "They never had a chance to marry," he said. "That's why they go to college. They are on a manhunt."

But in the estimation of Michael Caplan, a college education increases a co-ed's matrimonial chances. "Education has made them more interesting, more intellectual, and more companionable," he replied. "So why shouldn't they be better life companions."

"If fewer college girls marry, it is because they are interested in careers" declared Rose Stear of Teacher's College.

A public enemy is an evil man who gets rich with the loyal support and assistance of good citizens.

GOATS IN GARAGE COSTS STATE O. K.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4—A garage that also serves as a home for goats has been rejected for appointment as an official motor vehicle inspection station. The rigid inspection now being made by the Department of Revenue of the place of business and equipment of applicants for appointment is revealing that some of the garages are not what their owners said they were on their applications for appointment.

The Department is taking every precaution to protect the public in its selection of inspection stations. Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, said today.

The two compulsory inspection campaigns fixed for next year by Governor Gifford Pinchot are to be more thorough and efficient than ever before, the Commissioner declared. The first inspection period is from January 1 to March 31, inclusive; the second from July 1 to September 30, inclusive, with arrest periods of three months following each inspection.

The place of business of each of the more than 7300 applicants for inspection station appointments must meet all the Department's requirements before it will be accepted it was said.

The fact that an applicant has satisfactorily answered all the questions on the application sent by the Department, does not mean that such applicant will be appointed.

Details from the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol are now in the field investigating the accuracy of the statements made.

Garage and service station owners who cannot meet all of the Department's requirements are advised by Commissioner Eynon to withhold their applications until they are able to do so. No promises will be considered. Applicants must have the necessary space, equipment, facilities and trained personnel visible when visited by the Department's inspector.

Fear Of Being Laughed At For Appearing Too Good Cited As Fault Of Many

This Aversion To Piety Has Come Partly As A Reaction From The Old Pharisaical Hypocrisy, Says Noted Pastor

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN
Pastor of Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, New York City

The present generation is afraid of the cynic, whereas our forefathers were afraid of the censor.

We are more fearful of being laughed at for seeming too good than of being criticized for our badness. This aversion of piety has come partly as a reaction from the old Pharisaical hypocrisy, which made so many churchmen seem contemptible. If there is one quality in which our generation prides itself pre-eminently, it is that of honesty. And many church pillars have been palpable frauds.

The advance of culture does make for gentlemanly reserve in religion. The higher minds do not carry their deep emotions on their sleeves. Men of taste are repelled by those who talk too glibly about their personal religion. Jesus, the gentleman, liked persons of reserve, and rebuked the emptiness of words without works. But religious experience cannot be kept secret any more successfully than a light can be kept burning under a bushel.

What Christianity needs is the translation of religious experience into twentieth century terms concrete enough to be convincing and plain enough to be appealing. If the disciples of Christ were to express their religious convictions in the same simple straightforward language in which they discussed their business we should start a revival of religion in our western world.

Follow New Clue In Murder Case

Ask Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings To Identify Photo Of Man Recently Found Dead

(International News Service)

STAMFORD, Conn., Dec. 4.—Possibility that Frank Palon, alias George Miller, whose body was found in the wreck of a stolen boat off the Holland coast, might be the man who murdered her husband, was expressed here Thursday, by Mrs. Benjamin P. Collins, widow of the victim.

Shown a photograph of Palon, taken while he was an inmate of the state prison at Walla Walla, Wash., Mrs. Collins said the man had the same prominent eyebrows and sharp straight nose of the elder "Pirate" who murdered her husband on the Collins yacht in Long Island Sound in September.

Palow's hair was bushy, however, she said, and her husband's murderer was absolutely bald.

"He was so bald," Mrs. Collins told the International News Service, "that I wondered if he had not escaped recently from some prison."

NEW OFFICIALS GET DATA ON SALARIES AND OTHER MATTERS

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 4.—Mayor-elect J. Fred Thomas and Councilmen-elect Ralph Robinson and Jacob Goldberg are visiting the other third-class cities in this district to study the municipal payrolls preparatory to starting work on the Sharon city budget for 1932. Among things they wish to learn are the number of municipal employes, the salaries and wages paid and the method of collecting and disposing of garbage. Although the survey is planned as an aid in determining the advisability of reducing the number of municipal employes and the salaries and wages paid, no steps have been taken toward such reductions, according to Mayor-elect Thomas. Wednesday the three men visited Butler and later in the week will visit Washington, Oil City, Franklin and Meadville.

Hungry Man Who Picked Up Deer Meat Freed From Jail

Game Wardens Admit Full Investigation Had Not Been Made

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 4.—Victor Baney of Petroleum Center, sentenced to 106 days in the county jail when he took a piece of venison from the railroad tracks after a deer had been killed and abandoned by game wardens, was released from jail yesterday.

Game wardens said it was "all a mistake," that information had been made against Baney without full investigation of the circumstances. One officer said that so many reports of illegal kills came in during the deer season that all cases could not be thoroughly investigated, and so an "unfortunate error" sent Baney to jail.

Aroused citizens in Oil City and Franklin started the new check-up which resulted in Baney's freedom, and withdrawal of the charge before Magistrate George Kern in Oil City.

Now science shows why KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN acts so GENTLY

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Vitamin B helps tone the intestinal tract.

Nature demands these two essentials to function properly. For that reason, ALL-BRAN is far better than pills or drugs, which stimulate artificial action.

Two tablespoonfuls daily of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will overcome most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a good source of blood-building iron. Serve as a cereal, or use in cooking. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Feed Laying Birds For Poultry Profits

Poultry profits are largely dependent on wise feeding practices. The birds should be given opportunity to consume large quantities of feed.

At least 10 linear feet of hopper space should be provided for every 100 birds. Feed boxes can be constructed so that the birds will be able to eat from both sides. Circular 131, published by the Pennsylvania State College agricultural extension service, describes a satisfactory home-made feeder. Copies of this circular can be obtained free from the Agricultural Extension Association Office.

Grain will be kept cleaner if all of it is fed in troughs instead of in dirty litter. Furthermore, one can readily determine if the hens are cleaning up the grain that is fed. With this method, the birds can fill up in a hurry even if fed late in the afternoon of a dark day.

Pullets in heavy production may not consume a sufficient amount of grain to keep their body weight up to the right point. A mixture of 10 pounds each of ground yellow corn, ground oats, and condensed milk may be fed at the rate of three pounds before moistening to each 100 birds daily. Dried milk can be used in place of the condensed product. It is economical to use one-third as much dried milk as condensed.

Since an egg is approximately 65 per cent water it is essential to provide an ample supply of water for the flock. Cutting off the water supply is likely to be followed by a slump in production. Many flocks would benefit if more water containers were supplied so that the birds would drink without crowding. It also is well to prevent freezing of the water during the winter.

Living Christmas Tree Grows In Popularity

Living Christmas trees are proving popular in many communities, according to the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture. They have been found suitable both for large outdoor celebrations, and for the family circle.

A good tree on the lawn of the home adds to the beauty of the grounds and is a permanent improvement. It may also serve as a perennial Christmas tree, and save the expense of a new tree to be bought every year. Although Christmas tree cutting can be done without injury to the forest if carried on under good forestry principles, a considerable portion of the present-day supply comes to the market as the result of promiscuous, destructive cutting, and in some cases vandalism.

Old Lawns May Need Seed And Fertility

Lack of fertility is the most frequent cause of old lawns becoming unthrifty and weedy.

Where weeds have completely taken possession, the best plan is to plow, spade, or otherwise work up the soil 2 or 3 inches deep to obtain a good firm seedbed. This should be done sometimes before seeding.

Digging the lawn up in the summer, keeping it free from weeds, and then seeding it in the fall usually will give the best results. Where this practice is not used, the soil may be worked up in late fall, allowed to lay bare until spring, then raked into a fine seedbed and seeded as soon as the frost is out of the ground and the land is dry enough to work.

Waiting until spring before working up the soil does not give as good results as when this is done in the fall. Before seeding, fertilizer and lime should be applied in the manner and amounts used in starting a new lawn.

Where there is a fair stand of grass, even though there may be bare spots six inches or more in diameter, liming on the surface and, in early spring, applying fertilizer will usually cause the grass to thicken and cover the ground completely in time. This is especially true if the turf is mostly blue grass and white clover.

Small bare spots from a foot to several feet in diameter may be reseeded by thoroughly raking to a depth of one inch or more, sewing and covering the seed with garden soil or compost one-quarter of an inch. Generally, the best time to treat these spots is in early spring when the soil is honey-comber, mellow, and easily worked with a rake. It is always a good plan to follow with a roller after seeding.

In some cases a young tree with the roots properly balled and packed in a box may be used indoors and later set out to beautify the grounds. If a permanent tree is chosen for planting, many varieties will be found suitable. Spruces, firs, pines, and cedars adapted to the locality usually give best results.

GRANDMOTHER IS GUILTY OF THEFT

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—A 67-year-old grandmother has been convicted as a robber.

She is Mrs. Anna Baranski, who was found guilty by a jury in criminal court yesterday.

The conviction carries a mandatory sentence of 1 to 20 years imprisonment, but the trial judge deferred passing judgment and the defendant's attorneys said they would request a new trial.

Mrs. Baranski, known as the "Grandmother Bandit" was accused of complicity with her son, who was slain in robbery, and Harold Marcell, who turned state's evidence. The authorities accused the grandmother of making small purchases in stores they planned to rob, thus learning advance of the holdups where the money could be found.

Forgotten Stockade Is Brought To Light

(International News Service)

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 4—One of the most valuable historic discoveries in Western Pensylvania in a decade was unearthed here recently when excavators brought to light an old and forgotten stockade at Fort Necessity.

Digging out the foundation for the reconstructed Fort Necessity, workmen came upon parts of the old-stockade, iron balls and inch and a half in diameter used in swivel guns in the old fort and a score or more of leaden bullets of an ounce and half ounce size.

Sections of the old stockade were found at a point where the fort extended over the great meadow run, from which Washington and his troops obtained their water supply.

Important Discovery

The discovery is regarded as one of the utmost significance, as the old stockade timbers definitely established the exact lines of the original fort. The bullets and other relics will serve as invaluable mementos for museums.

Sections of the crude stockade were unearthed from 18 inches to two feet under the surface. They were in double row alignment and so staggered that one row aligned the apertures between the posts in the other. The top of the stockade was charred, and it was recalled that the stockade was burned following an engagement 177 years ago.

Dr. William Blake Hindman, chairman of the Fort Necessity committee, Harry R. Blackford, Engineer in charge of the reconstruction of the old fort, and E. M. Mensel, superintendent in charge of the drainage of the property, were elated at the discovery.

MONUMENT ERECTED TO TWAIN CHARACTER

(International News Service)

SONORA, Cal., Dec. 4.—A large monument, replica of the markers of the Mark Twain-Bret Harte trail erected in Tuolumne county by the chamber of commerce has been unveiled over the grave of Jacob Richard Stoker in the Masonic cemetery here. The monument was sponsored by the Welfare Club of Sonora after Mrs. Juliette M. Hood discovered that "Dick" Stoker, one of Twain's famous characters, lay in an unmarked grave. A number of other societies aided in the drive for funds. Stoker was born in 1820 and died in 1898. He came to California in 1849, and was famous as "Dick Baker" in Twain's novel, "Roughing It," and other novels.

It was cooked up in an interview with Franchon Simon, who has trained 10,000 girls for the stage including Mary Lewis, Frances Williams, Lupe Velez, Lucille Page, Neil Kelly, Mitzi Mayfair.

The qualifications, in general, and in the order of their importance, call for figure, sweetness in bearing, grace, intelligence and ability to adapt.

* * *

"A girl should first take a good look at herself in the mirror," said Fanchon. "She doesn't have to be a ravishing beauty but she must be personable.

"After taking stock to see if she has the listed qualifications she should go to dancing school and learn to limber up. She must acquire rhythm.

"Then she is ready to answer a call of Fanchon and Marco or any other producer of stage shows and we will be glad to see her.

"The type of girl we want is not what might be generally called the Broadway type. Our girls must be hard workers and able to lead a clean and self-disciplined life. Because we do four or five shows a day and send our units throughout the country on a 47-week tour."

* * *

Fanchon has original viewpoints on stage girls.

She believes that if a girl doesn't arrive before 20 years of age she has a battle on her hands to get anywhere big.

Some of her girls are as young as 15 and keep on with their school work on tour between shows.

"If you're stage-minded you start as a child," she said.

* * *

As to beauty—

"If you have confidence in yourself you exude a certain beauty no matter what you are or what you look like,' Fanchon beleives.

"Norma Shearer has an indefinable charm in the birdlike quality of her head.

"Greta Garbo might be just a dull sort of girl if it weren't for her eyes—remarkable eyes which show the fire and beauty in her."

* * *

Fanchon, or Mrs. William Simon, is one of America's important women executives. With her brother, Marco Wolf, she employs 2,000 stage artists with a weekly payroll of $150,000.

They were a couple of kids in Los Angeles 20 years ago who did a vaudeville act, Marco playing the violin, Fanchon playing the piano, both of them dancing.

They started an original revue in San Francisco in 1915. It was in Tate's famous west coast cabaret.

From that developed their unique stage shows which are used in scores of movie houses to break the lack of intimacy of the silver screen.

From a line of singing and dancing girls they have evoluted a miniature revue, the band-leader as a master of ceremonies and such innovations as a unit made of eight girl-twins, a chorus that dances on stilted skates.

* * *

There is a rule that no show must contain any swearing, prohibition jokes, depression jokes or quips which might be considered against the government.

Fanchon has two children. Marco, also married, has three.

Fanhcon's five-year-old girl, Fay, spends most of her time watching rehearsals. She's going to be on the stage when she grows up. Fay's brother, Buddy, two years old, says he's going to be a judge.

BUILDING ROADS IN STATE FORESTS AIDS RURAL IDLE

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4.—New road construction planned for the present year in the Pennsylvania State forests, aided by favorable weather conditions and an abundance of labor, is being rapidly pushed to completion, according to reports received by Lewis E. Staley, Secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters, from the various district foresters. Nineteen new road projects are involved and are being built under a co-operative agreement between the Department of Forests and Waters and the Department of Highways.

A force of 300 men is at present engaged in the forest road work, the labor for which constitutes 85 per cent of the total amount being expended. Upon completion of this year's program, seventy-five miles of new forest road will be available for use, together with two rebuilt 40-foot span bridges.

Roosevelt isn't sure of the nomination yet, but no doubt Tammany will hate him at the phychological moment.

Appointing Mrs. Caraway To Fill Senate Vacancy Seen As Bad Precedent

Critics Fear Custom Of Naming Widows To Senate Will Not Always Prove As Satisfactory As Arkansas Case

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—One inclines to think of the widows who have succeeded their respective husbands in congress as having attained to those official positions by a sort of inheritance.

Upon a moment's reflection it is apparent enough that this is a conclusion no one is entitled to draw as to women members of the house of representatives whose husbands before them have occupied the legislative seats which they subsequently have been chosen to occupy.

Senate vacancies created by death in office usually are temporarily filled by gubernatorial appointment, but representatives must be elected. If the voters of a congressional district see fit to elect the widow of a previous representative, who died during his term, the assumption emphatically is that they want her to represent them and that is exactly the question that congressional elections are held to determine.

* * *

The very circumstance that an election is called when a representative dies, to enable the voters to choose someone in his place implies recognition of the fact that the office is not regarded as practically hereditary.

If the voters elect her, that is her business.

But the office does not descend to her simply because her husband filled it.

There is no argument about the matter.

The same rule is supposed to apply to senate seats.

* * *

It happens that no woman ever was chosen, either by appointment or election, until recently, when Mrs. Hattie Caraway was appointed by Governor Harvey Parnell of Arkansas, to fill the senate vacancy created by the death of her husband.

Mrs. Rebecca Felton was appointed from Georgia several years ago and served for a day, but she was not a senatorial widow.

It is unlikely that much will be said in audible tones in adverse criticism of the appointment of the widow of Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway to suceed him, or even in criticism of the comment with which Governor Parnell accompanied it.

The reasons for this reticence on the part of public men, who are the very ones who feel most strongly on the subject, are sufficiently obvious.

Senator Caraway's death is deeply deplored by all of them. No question is raised that his widow will occupy his place with eminent credit. It is fully recognized that fault-finding with the appointment, at such a time, would be widely denounced as equally brutal and in execrable taste. Additionally, no politician cares to risk arousing the feminine portion of the electorate against himself by cavilling at the appointment of a woman to the senate regardless of the circumstances.

* * *

Nevertheless, one hears disapproval of the Arkansas governor's action expressed on Capitol hill, in strict confidence indeed, but in extremely vigorous language.

Not, the critics all say, but that the appointment, in itself, was an excellent one.

There has for some time been a feeling in legislative circles, however, that the immediate suggestion, whenever a national lawmaker dies, that his widow is the most suitable person to follow him, is crystallizing into what promises to become a nearly unbreakable and thoroughly bad precedent.

* * *

Even the hardest boiled of politicians have long abandoned any thought of continuing to resist the spread of feminine influence in government affairs, but there are old-timers not a few (and some not so against a system by which they declare that the widows of men in important public posts are coming virtually to claim, as of right, each her late husband's official position.

"I have appointed Mrs. Caraway senator," he said, "because I feel she is entitled to the office held by her distinguished husband. The office belonged to Senator Caraway, who went before the people and received their indorsement, and his widow is rightfully entitled to the honor.

"Not only is she due the temporary appointment, but I feel she should receive the party nomination (for Senator Caraway's unexpired term ending March 3, 1933) and that her nomination will be approved by the great majority of the voters of Arkansas."

* * *

"If so," observed a Democratic colleague of the late Arkansas senator, speaking of Governor Parnell's reference to majority approval of the appointment at the coming special election, 'well and good.

"Nor is there any question as to the propriety of the governor's temporary appointment.

"For all that, Senator Caraway's office did not 'belong' to him in any such sense as to 'entitle' his widow to it. Moreover, good as the appointment was, on purely personal considerations, the custom of naming his widow to fololw him whenever a senator dies is now established with a vengeance. It may not always prove so satisfactory."

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Last weekend I was a guest at an extremely picturesque, expensive and cold Long Island estate. The theory of the owner is that winter does not really begin until the first week in December, frosty mornings to the contrary notwithstanding.

If there is anything which requires more courage than leaving a warm bed for the rigors of a totally unheated room whose windows have been open all night, I do not know what it is. Such experiences are doubtless what drove Lincoln upward from the farm.

My own log cabin shall be piped for hot air before it is wired for sound. I had rather listen to the singing of a single open valve than to the warblings of the cheeriest mocking birds. But it is my understanding that mcoking birds have sense enough to winter south

There lies one of the greatest disadvantages of this job. It is necessary to stay around t[illegible] in order to write about it although one of the first and most successful New York columns was written and mailed from Washington, D. C. I withhold the author's name so as not to embarrass his heirs. He died at a comparatively early age, from the high nervous pace of the nation's capital.

* * *

HELTER SKELTER HODGE-PODGE

I see by the papers, as the saying goes, that Joseph Williams Palmer is dead. He was a fabulous character of my youthful stamp-collecting days, with his reputation for being the wealthiest philatelic leader in London and the romantic story of how he got his start—by finding a triangular Cape of Good Hope stamp in the gutter.

I ought to save this one for the weekly "What Few New Yorkers Know" stint, but Murray Hill, that eastern mid-section of the island, which contains this apartment building, was originally, and still has its prototype in Flushing, Long Island. The Murray Hill family, from which both sections took their name still occupies a manse in Flushing which has housed seven generations—a very rare record for any structure in these parts. . . .Two hundred years without moving is no mean mark.

Two actors discussing another rather sissified mime, in Times Square, "Yeah, he tats a mean doily that boy!". . . Graham McNamee, as you may have noticed, did not report a Thanksgiving game for the air. the first time in years. . . Rumor has it that this great figure of pioneering radio days is running into difficulty because of "tumultuous inaccuracies" in his broadcasting.

* * *

WIDE-EYED WANDERINGS

New York apartment settlements are springing up in profusion . . . There is the Beaux Arts, whose Frenchy tones is accentuated by modernistic facade and doormen in natty gendarme's uniforms. . . London Terrace, on the other hand, boasts car-starters who are replicas of English "bobbies". . . .I never see the word "booboisie," Mr. Mencken's coinage, any more (the reminder comes from my typewriter keys getting tripped on "bobbies.")

The little cashier in that Broadway automatic voice-recording place near Forty-eighth street is a pip. . . Francine Larrimore talks like a human being in her plays, not like an actress' idea of how an actress should talk.

Mrs. David Kelly's mansion near Riverdale, N. Y. has an artificial electric moon for the conservatory . . . It is full, quarter or new according to the guests whims and a twist of a gadget. . . .Sinclair Lewis has 20,000 words done on a new novel, which will be ready in three months.

* * *

WHAT'S YOURS

Once a year in this place I'm going to reprint the ten items (if there are that many) best remembered by the amiable folk who plow through the column day after day. I'm going to reprint them, by the way just as they are recalled, not necessarily as they were set down here.

What were yours? And for Pete's sake, don't team up on that one which caused all the sleeplessness!

Will List Danger Spots On Highways

HARRISBURIG, Dec. 4.—Along with making a study of "accident prone" motor vehicle operators, the safety division of the bureau of motor vehicles plans to check "accident prone" street or highway intersections. That is one of the reasons for the more detailed explanation of the scene of an accident asked for in the new accident report form recently issued.

"Frequent accidents at certain intersections after investigation might indicate that unsafe conditions prevailed," said Walter W. Matthews, chief of the division. "These conditions might have to do with road construction, lack of traffic signals or stop signs. By filling out carefully the space in the new accident report headed, 'Time and Place of Accident' motor vehicle operators will help in the correction of any 'accident prone' intersection."

The maker of the report will find space on the new form in which to state between what streets or at the intersection of what streets the accident took place. There is also space for the United States and Pennsylvania route numbers. If the accident occurred in the country, the operator is asked to give the route number and name of town or city nearest scene of accident, distance in miles from scene of accident to town or city and compass direction of town or city from accident.

CHILD WHO LIVED ONLY 20 MINUTES RULED LEGAL HEIR

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 4.—An infant, whose heart beat only 20 minutes after its birth, is eligible to share in its dead father's estate, accordingto a court ruling on Nebraska inheritance laws.

Mrs. Pauline Stuertz whose child, born after the death of her husband, never drew a breath, was awarded an $11,000 estate. The child's heart beat for 20 minutes, an attending physician testified, making the child a legal sharer in the estate.

Grandparents of the dead child contended the infant was dead at birth, and they were entitled to half the estate. The jury, however, found that the child was legally alive.

Nebraska inheritance laws provide a wife receives one-half her dead husband's estate and surviving children share the second. Mrs. Stuertz contended she was entitled to her $5,500 and her child $5,500.

By indicating its willingness to work with the elephant in bearing the Nation's burdens, the donkey shows horse sense.—The San Antonio Evening News.

Panama's Link In Big Highway Near Completion

Winds Through Beautiful Scenery And Hunters' Paradise

By JAMES RYAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COLON, Dec. 4.—Panama's link in the Inter-American Highway which will connect Canada and the United States with Central and South America, is virtually completed. It needs only the finishing touches of road machines which cannot be given until the beginning of the dry season in December. This is the report first made by the National Road Commission of the Republic.

Beginning at the Costa Rican border and connecting with roads of her sister Republic, Panama's national highway is even now an important highway, traveled daily by automobiles from neighboring northern republics.

The new link, beginning at the Costa Rican border, winds its way through the highlands of Panama; through the most beautiful sections of the Republic's countryside where orange groves and coffee plantations flourish side by side on the slopes of extinct volcanoes. In places the highway reaches an altitude of more than 5,000 feet, ascending into a climate which all the year 'round can be compared only to that of the State of Maine in the early, frosty months of fall.

In the Volcan region the highlands where fine coffee is grown the international tourist driving from the United States finds modern hotels owned and managed by Americans. Fall clothing is the vogue the year round and tired travelers snuggle comfortably beneath two and three blankets as wintry winds from the peak of "El Volcan" sweep down her slopes.

The Volcan region is called the hunter's paradise, abounding in deer, duck, wild turkey and even the great tapir which may be seen frequently not far from the highway itself. Vegetables of the Temperate Zone flourish in Panama's highlands and the traveler on the Inter-American Highway finds that fresh strawberries, raspberries, pears and apples are always in season.

Already real estate operators have been busy and the subdivider has found his opportunity. New California, an all American colony has been founded, peopled by wealthy Californians. Among the "settlers" is Ruth Roland, the Hollywood movie star, who in addition to her homesite has purchased and planted a vast coffee plantation not far from the highway itself.

Panama's highway is ready, and Panama awaits only the completion of other links to bring prosperity to Latin America.

FRIEND IN JUDGE INSTEAD OF JAIL

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Quite unexpectedly Joe Berma, 17, found a friend instead of a jail sentence in Boy's Court.

He found two friends, in fact. The first was Judge J. William Brooks. He put Joe on probation for breaking open a penny weighing machine and pocketing its contents—$5.10. The flimsy construction of the tin container was too great a temptation to put before boys during times when many are on the verge of starvation, the judge declared.

Joe's second friend was Henry Gilmore, Big Brother of the court, in whose custody Judge Brooks placed the boy. His face wreathed in smiles, Joe promised to "be good" and to report to Gilmore regularly.

MAY LOSE HOUSE

(International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4.—Notified a suit had been filed to foreclose on their $50,000 home in White Plains, N. Y., Vivian and Rosetta Duncan, "the Duncan sisters" of screen and stage, declared today: "The house costs $600 a month upkeep; and we don't even live in it."

One of these days Eugene O'Neill will write a play so long that it will be cheaper to buy a ticket and attend than stay home and pay rent.—The Oakland Tribune.

When the wolf and a collector arrived at the front door at the same time both gave it up as a bad job.

Nature Comes First

Having exacted a promise from officers when he surrendered that he would not be brought to trial until after he has seen his unborn child, Charles Draper, Oklahoma mountaineer, awaits the event and his trial for life in jail in McCurtain county, Oklahoma. He is charged with murdering two men and a youth near the Arkansas-Oklahoma boundary. Expecting the death penalty, Draper has asked permission to take up a burial fund collection during his trial.

Old Traditions Of Stage Dying, Says Director

Scene Stealing One Of The Fables Of Theater History

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD Dec. 4.—Stage traditions many centuries old are dying rapidly under the influence of the motion picture, according to Stuart Walker, for 20 years a stage director and Little Theater exponent, on starting production of a new feature film.

"For centuries, it was believed that a player could not speak dialogue while moving," Walker explain. "As late as 1912, William Farnum, while engaged in a stage fight, halted the action, strode down stage to deliver a speech and then return to the fight. His opponent obligingly waited until he was through talking before re-attacking him.

"Many of our present day stage stars will not permit any other member of the cast to move while they are talking. They consider movement a ruse by the others to catch the audience's eye and 'steal' the scene on the presumption that the audience watches the movement rather than the speaker.

"Stage stars now often talk while walking, as a result of screen influence. Some of the more liberal-minded ones even permit supporting players to move during their speeches.

KEEPS WATCH ON ACCIDENT PRONE AUTO OPERATORS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4.—For the past eight months the bureau of motor vehicles of the Department of Revenue has kept record of cases in which that type of operator known as the "accident prone" has been involved in a previous accident.

During that time about 26,000 files were examined and it was found that approximately 4850 accidents included persons who had previously reported other accidents. Of this number there were 4248 operators who had been involved in one previous accident; 495 in two other accidents; 95 in three previous accidents, while 12 operators reported that they had been involved in four other accidents.

The number of "accident prones' represents about 19 per cent. of the total files examined. About 87 per cent. of those involved in additional accidents reported one other collision, and 10 per cent. reported two previous accidents. In 170 cases both operators reporting an accident had been involved in previous collisions.

KING OF ALASKA'S CHILD STUDIES TO BE NURSE

BERKELEY, Dec. 4.—"Princess" Jennie Brower 20, daughter of "King" Charles Brower of Point Barrow, Alaska, was revealed here as a 'daughter of royalty" incognito, ministering to the ill at Alta Bates hospital.

Her father has been for 20 years the uncrowned monarch of the far north, and Miss Brower, half Eskimo and half Caucasian reigns over a small kingdom.

Although Prower amassed a fortune in the fur trade, after women's abandonment of corsets killed the whalebone industry, he prefers to stay in the far north.

Not so his daughter, who soon will graduate from the hospital.

ANTI-ALCOHOLIC HOUR

(International News Service)

MEXICO CITY—A weekly "anti-alcoholic hour" is now observed in all the federal schools of the republic, numbering nearly 20,000, as part of Mexico's temperance campaign. The "anti-alcoholic hour", taking place every Friday from 11 to 12 o'clock in the morning, is being devoted to the instruction of the pupils on the evils of drink. This method of reaching the coming generation was initiated by the ministry of industry, commerce and labor.

Feeding Army Costs Less A Day

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—It cost nine cents a day less to feed a soldier in 1931 than in 1930, even though he was given the same food.

This fact is revealed in the annual report of Major General John L. Dewitt, quartermaster general of the army, submitted to Secretary of War Hurley. Dewitt said that the per soldier cost of the daily ration had decreased from 50.06 to 41.15 cents.

Dewitt, whose bureau has had charge of the pilgrimages war mothers and widows have been making to European cemeteries, said 1,784 women made the tour in the summer of 1931, as compared with 3,653 in 1930. Approximately 12,000 more are entitled to go, under the congressional act authorizing the pilgrimages.

WATCH-CHAIN IN LEG SINCE WORLD WAR

(International News Service)

SCHLESWIG, Germany, Dec. 4.—For thirteen years Claus Thomsen, a farmer of Erfderfeld wore a watch chain, not on his waist-coat, but in his leg.

Thomsen served with the artillery during the war. In the spring of 1918 a shell struck Thomsen's fieldpiece killing or wounding all fifteen gunners. Thomsen himself received eighteen wounds. He lay unconscious 14 days, but finally was discharged as cured.

During the following years Thomsen sometimes felt pains in his leg which were attributed to rheumatism. Recently the pains became worse so that he decided to undergo an operation.

At the Schleswig hospital the surgeons found two inches of watch-chain in his leg. Thomsen could not identify the chain as his property. It probably belonged to one of his comrades.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Mother Of Mark Twain Courageous

Dr. Myers Tells How Woman Defied Enraged Man

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D. Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

Just 96 years ago today Mark Twain was born. His real name was Samuel L. Clemens. He lived for 75 years. Your children and mine have enjoyed with us Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn. These and other books by Mark Twain many hundred parents have read aloud and still are reading aloud to their sons and daughters.

Mark Twain must have had a remarkable mother. She lived to the age of 88, though she "at 40 was so delicate of body as to be accounted a confirmed invalid and destined to pass soon away." In Vol. I of Mark Twain's Autobiography (Harper and Brothers) he writes of her:

"She had a slender, small body, but a large heart—a heart so large that everybody's grief and everybody's joys found welcome in it, and hospitable accommodation. The greatest difference which I find between her and the rest of the people whom I have known is this, and it is a remarkable one; those others felt a strong interest in a few things, whereas to the very day of her death she felt a strong interest in the whole world and everything and everybody in it. In all her life she never knew such a thing as half-hearted interest in affairs and people, or an interest which drew a line and left out certain affairs and was different to certain people.

"The invalid who takes a strenuous and indestructible interest in everything and everybody but himself, and to whom a dull moment is an unknown thing and an impossibility, is a formidable adversary for disease and a hard invalid to vanquish. I am certain that it was this feature of my mothers' make-up that carried her so far toward 90.

"Her interest in people and other animals was warm, personal, friendly. She always found something to excuse, and as a rule to love, in the toughest of them—even if she had to put it there herself. She was a natural ally and friend of the friendless. . . One day in our village I saw a vicious devil of a Corsican, a common terror in the town, chasing his grown daughter past cautious male citizens with a heavy rope in his hand, and declaring he would wear it out on her.

"My mother spread her door wide to the refugee, and then, instead of closing and locking it after her, stood in it and stretched her arms across it, barring the way. The man swore, cursed, threatened her with the rope, but she did not flinch or show any sign of fear; she only stood straight and fine, and lashed him, shamed him, defied him in tones not audible to the middle of the street, but audible to the man's conscience and dormant manhood; and he asked her pardon and gave her his rope and said with a most great and blasphemous oath that she was the bravest woman he ever saw; and so went his way without other word and troubled her no more. He and she were always good friends after that, for in her he had found a long-felt want—somebody who was not afraid of him."

Mark Twain's mother seems to have had that rare combination, properly mixed, of gentleness and courage.

Life Saver, Swim Tutor, Student Is Ruth Mullaney

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 4.—They call her "The Skipper" at Boston University's school of education but along the Cape its "High Tide" Mullaney.

A busy girl is this Miss Ruth Mullaney of Hyannis. When not serving as director of swimming and life saving for the Cape Cod Chapter of the American Red Cross she is either teaching school or striving for another college degree.

During last summer she traveled a distance of more than 4,000 miles, stopping at twenty Cape Cod beaches, instructing 700 people in the art of swimming and life saving. Each morning of the summer months, she attended a course of Hyannis Normal School wearing her bathing suit beneath her clothes in order to lose no time in getting away to give swimming lessons.

"The girls are extra cylinders," she stated. "When the car gets stuck, as sometimes happens, they all hop out and push."

"Putting On Dog" Is Fashion Now With Lady's Kerchiefs

And for the owners or extollers of pekingese, chows, wire hairs, wolf hounds, or just dog, there are kerchiefs with their pictures, either of a single dog or of several of the same kind of dog romping around the border.

But a handy hanky idea that has the handkerchief departments reordering is the lipstick handkerchief. These are small and red, and their duty is to save other handkerchiefs from smear of lipstick.

If the romantic gesture of "dropping the handkerchiefs" comes back, the kerchiefs, bespeaking the quintessence of femininity with lace and chiffon, are ready—and large and colorful enough to be easily seen.

In general handkerchiefs are large and getting larger. Some have already passed men's handkerchiefs in size. The popular sizes are 13, 19 and 23 inches.

And in keeping with fashion's edict of matched accessories, the head of a smart handkerchief department said the kerchiefs were taking their color cues from the wearer's jewels or trimming on the dress.

Handkerchiefs that go out in the evening are chiffon or marquesette. They have tiny hand rolled hems. Some have lace corners. Others have appliqued initials. Some are square and some are circular. They come in pastel shades, black and white, or all black.

For the more conservative to who elegancy is the last tword, exquisite Swiss embroidered handkerchiefs, some with monograms, are shown. Very smart are the appenzell embroidered handkerchiefs and their reproductions and the fine French linen handkerchiefs with hand rolled hems, taped or corded borders.

TIBERIUS HAD HOOVER "FROZEN ASSETS" CURE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4.—President Hoover's plan to distribute $500,000,000 to banks distressed with "frozen assets" is only another adaptation of the scheme devised by the Roman Emperor Tiberius, James Francis Burke, counsel for the National Republican Party told a convention of engineers here.

"Tiberius distributed a million sesterces from the imperial treasury, to be loaned by solvent banks to needy debtors over a period of three years without interest," Burke declared.

Chiding modern gloom-bearers to throw away their fears, the wizened political leader pointed out that in the year A. D. 33 agriculture and industry faced universal bankruptcy in all quarters of the globe.

"It was then that the famous military roads of the Romans were built to relieve unemployment," he declared.

"Spread the gospel of optimism," said Burke.

BICYCLE BUILT FOR TWO COMES BACK

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 4.—"Bicycles built for two" are coming back. Evidence of this is seen on the roadways of England.

The first evidences of revival of the two-person bike appeared about five years ago, according to British dealers. Small specialized makes at that time produced the double mount on individual orders but the business is reported to have grown so of late that the large cyclist firms have taken up the tandem and have added to them the latest technical improvements as well as the advantages of mass production.

One of Englands largest cycle firms recently announced a new program for 1932 which include the manufacture of a bike of this type to retail at approximately $75.

"REVOLVING FUND" TO AID STUDENTS

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 4—With the "work-your-way" college student encountering difficulties because of existing industrial conditions and turning toward their university for financial aid, T. Everett Fairchild of Boston University has formulated a plan under which the number of students so aided will be quadrupled.

To suit Boston University's needs, Fairchild proposed the establishment of a $100,000 "revolving fund" of which $20,000 would be lent to students during each college year.

With the average college generation only four years in length, the repayment program could be arranged so that by the end of the fifth year the $20,000 loaned in the first year of operation of the fund would be returned and again would be available for loans. Meanwhile, the unused portions of the original $100,000 would produce interest and increase the principal.

Three Miners In Scranton Region Crushed To Death

Two Others Seriously Injured As Result Of Rock And Coal Fall

RESCUE WORKERS UNSUCCESSFUL

(International News Service)

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 4—Three men met almost instant death and two other men were injured seriously today when a huge fall of coal and rock blocked passages in the Capouse colliery of the Penn Anthracite Coal Company.

The dead:

The injured:

Steve Patrick, 28, and Watson Dayden, 45.

Galaida was killed instantly in the fall. Skrec lived a few minutes after being carried from the choked shaft. The accident occurred in a big vein where six men were working on the colliery's night shift.

A tragic scene was enacted at the mine mouth this morning, when Thomas Y. Jones, attached to the Scranton City police, learned his son had been buried in the fall. Guards were forced to subdue the frantic father who fought desperately to enter the mine to aid in the search for his son. Officials said Jones' body probably would not be recovered for several hours.

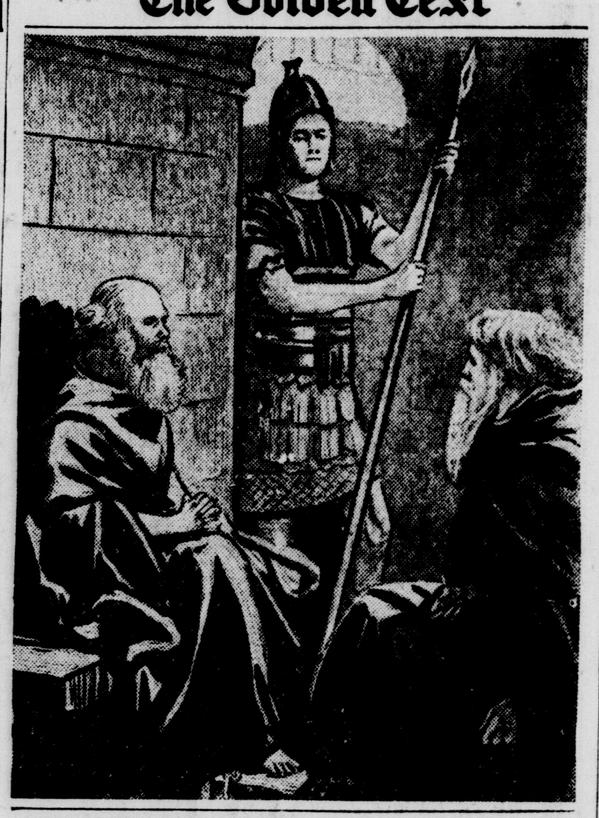
Rome And Beyond

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text



I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.—II Timothy 4:7.

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

Writing his epistle to the Romans in the year 58, from Corinth, he speaks of his plans to visit Jerusalem to deliver certain offerings for poor relief that he has gathered in Greece and Macedonia, after which, he tells his friends in Rome, "when I have accomplished this, and have sealed to them this fruit, I will go on by you unto Spain. And I know that, when I am come unto you, I shall come in the fulness of the blessing of Christ." Up to this time he speaks of his parish as stretching "from Jerusalem and round about, even unto Illyricum," a distance of fourteen hundred miles, which he now proposes to double to include Rome and Spain! Tremendous distances for those times of slow travel, and yet Paul speaks of them as though he had modern methods of transportation at his command. Thus love defies barriers and laughs at distances! Paul was never satisfied with present attainments. For him there must always be an alluring "beyond" to beckon him.

Paul in Rome

Paul came to Rome in a far different manner from what he anticipated when he wrote his letter to the Romans, for he came as a prisoner in chains. However, his first imprisonment of "two whole years in his own hired house" Acts 28:30, 31) was comparatively free from hardship, and was spent in preaching and teaching and in the writing of such letters as Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians and Philemon. From this first imprisonment Paul was probably released to continue his missionary journeys for a period of several years, until he was imprisoned in Rome a second time, under greater hardships and with fewer privileges. It was during this second imprisonment that he wrote the letters we call "the pastoral epistles" to Timothy and Titus.

Paul's Last Words

Among his last words, written to Timothy shortly before he was beheaded until Nero, Paul gives us a remarkable picture of his 30 years of Christian service and of the undaunted spirit with which he faced his executioners: "I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give to me at that day; and not to me only, but also to all them that have loved his appearing."

"Carry On"

His purpose in these pastoral epistles was to encourage his pupils to "carry on" after his death and to warn them against the perils of false teaching and loose living. The keynote of his first letter to Timothy is "Guard the deposit" (6:20); that of the letter to Titus is "Maintain good works" (3:14); and that of his second letter to Timothy, which is his "swang song," the very last we have from his pen, is "Workmen unashamed" (2:15). His last words are for his friends. He asks few favors for himself except a cloak to lessen the misery of his dungeon and some parchments that he may continue his writings. His dependence now, as always, is upon the Lord Jesus: "The Lord stood by me, and strengthened me. . . . The Lord will deliver me from every evil work, and will have me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be the glory for ever and ever. Amen."

Executives Plan Mid-Year Conference

Sabbath School Association Leaders Plan For Coming Activities Of Schools

The regular monthly meeting of the Lawrence County Sabbath School Association was held in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening with the president, Robert M. Strickler, Jr., presiding and the following members present: George Allen, President of Pulaski District; Homer C. Drake, Home Department Superintendent; Margaret S. Walker, Temperance Superintendent; Lorimer Carlysle, Associate Young Peoples Superintendent, and additional members of the executive committee, David S. Williams, H. L. Marvin and Mrs. F. R. Weisz.

The date for the Mid-Year Efficiency Conference was set for January 28 in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium. The Christian Fellowship dinner wil be held at 6:30 in the green room, and at this time an attractive shield will be awarded to the district having the best percentage of officers and departmental superintendents present. The representative of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association will be Rev. E. H. Bonsall, Young Peoples Superintendent. He will address both the afternoon session and the conference dinner in the evening. The Mid-Year Conference program committee appointed was composed of the following: H. L. Marvin, Mrs. M. E. Vaughn and Homer C. Drake.

A discussion followed as to whether or not the next County Convention should be held in the Cathedral. It was brought out in the discussion that the districts received benefit from entertaining the convention, and that it might be well to hold the next convention in some district outside of New Castle, where facilities made this possible. It was left to the president to inquire into this and make a report at the next meeting.

Mr. Marvin suggested that all of the schools be visited before the next county convention, and the dates set for the visitation were Sundays, May 29th and June 5th.

Miss Margaret Walker was given several hundred leaflets to be used among her District Temperance Superintendents next Sunday, giving publicity to the Allied Temperance Campaigners who are to be in the city next week. Miss Walker also made the request that the State W. C. T. U. Young People's Superintendent be permitted to have a place on the next Young People's Conference program; this superintendent, Mrs. Sherbine of Johnstown, would plan to spend a week in Lawrence County visiting the schools and other groups of young people.

Rev. R. M. Haverfield, pastor of the Westfield Presbyterian church who is Religious Education superintendent of the County Association, was scheduled to read a paper on "The Objectives of Christian Education" at this meeting but was called to Beaver County and this part of the program was postponed until the next regular meeting.

On account of illness the acting secretary, Mrs. M. E. Vaughn was not present, so Miss Walker was appointed to this office for the evening.

WHEN IS A DUEL NOT A DUEL, COURT POSER

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—German judges still have a hard time deciding whether a student's duel is a "duel with deadly weapons" and therefore an offense, or whether it is just a "sport" like boxing.

While for a long time all students caught duelling were sentenced to varying terms of detention in fortresses, a Berlin court has not acquitted a student who fought a pre-arranged student's duel.

In the verdict it was explained that even the Supreme Court of Germany had been unable to define clearly where and when a serious duel starts and when a duel is still a manly game.

"I do not see why we should and could be wiser than the Supreme Court" ruled the judges, and the defendant was acquitted.

Hanukah Service In Tifereth Israel

Feast Of Lights Will Begin With Service This Evening And Last Eight Days

Hanukah, known also as the Feast of Lights, will be observed tonight for the ensuing eight days all over the world by Jews and Jewesses who are sympathetically united to their great past, and will kindle lights in their homes in honor of the brave deeds wrought by the intrepid Maccabees in defending their hearths and altars from the attack of the heathen invader. Parents and children will join one another in singing hymns of praise to God and paeans of gratitude to Judah, the Maccabee, and his courageous followers for their brave defense of Judea and Judaism.

The observance of the Hanukah festival is not only a tribute to a great and glorious past—it is the expression of self-consecration on an occasion which recalls the wondrous past, and which calls to the performance of duty in the living present. It is celebrated only to indicate the momentous nature of the conflict in which the Maccabees were engaged in the second century, B. C. E., and to remind the Jew that the peaceful warfare of ideas and ideals is not yet ended. The story of the victory of Judah, the Maccabee, and his handful of raw, untrained recruits, over the most renowned generals and disciplined troops of Graeco-Syria, after a score and more years of continuous battle, opens up the details of as epoch-making a struggle as has ever been recorded on the pages of the history of any nation, when Palestine was reclaimed for God, for Israel and for humanity.

In honor of the celebration, special exercises will be held at the Tifereth Israel synagogue, South Jefferson street, on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The children of the religious school will participate in an interesting program composed of songs, recitations and essays appropriate for the occasion. Rabbi J. Shapo will preach a sermon entitled "Heroes and Heroism."

ILLUSTRATED BIBLE LESSON

"Rome and Beyond"

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

ROM. 15:22-29; 2 TIM. 4:6-18; TITUS 1:5-16; 3:11-14: From his first imprisonment Paul probably was released to continue his missionary journeys for a period of several years, until he was imprisoned in Rome a second time under greater hardships and with fewer privileges. "Only Luke is with me," Paul wrote. It was during this second imprisonment that he wrote "the pastoral epistles" to Timothy and Titus.

Among Paul's last words, written to Timothy shortly before he was beheaded under Nero, Paul gives us a picture of his 30 years of Christian service and of the spirit with which he faced his executioners: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness. . . ."

The purpose of these pastoral epistles was to encourage Paul's pupils to "carry on" after his death—to "maintain good works." His last words were for his friends. He asked few favors for himself except a cloak to lessen the misery of his dungeon and some parchments that he might continue his writings.

Paul's dependence now as always was upon the Lord Jesus: "The Lord stood by me, and strengthened me. . . . The Lord will deliver me from every evil work, and will save me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be the glory for ever and ever. Amen."

GOLDEN TEXT: 2 TIM. 4:7.

Advise Killing Of Orchard Pests Now

Kill Orchard Pests—Poison bait for mouse control may be placed now in the orchards. The bait should be so placed that it is hidden from birds, livestock, or irresponsible persons. Wide-necked bottles and tin cans may be used, or the bait may be placed under boards or in the tunnels of the rodents.

Care for Garden Tools—Good tools kept in condition will make gardening a pleasure next year. Now is the time to clean all tools and cover the metal parts with light grass. Hotbed sash probably need paint. If the hotbed is cleaned it will be ready for use next February or March.

Feed Wheat to Cows— Wheat makes a good feed for dairy cattle in amounts up to one-third of the total grain mixture. It should be rolled or coarsely ground and mixed with bulky feeds, such as bran or oats, in addition to enough protein feed to make a balanced ration.

Save Dead Timer—Trees have been dying this year as a result of the severe drought last year. By harvesting them now, good logs may be saved for lumber or firewood. If these dead trees are allowed to stand through another summer, many of them will be rendered useless by decay, say Penn State foresters.

Build Hog Houses—Colony or individual hog houses are easy and inexpensive to build. They are warmer and more sanitary than most central farrowing houses. If such houses are not available, they can be built during the winter so they will be ready for farrowing time.

Shell and Store—Seed corn which has dried out about as much as corn ordinarily does by May 1, when stored in cribs, can be shelled and stored in sacks or in metal containers, which have a few holes in the top for ventilation, until planting time.

Beware Of Broken Bone In Winter

Ice And Sleet Make Work For Surgeons, Warns Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Every man views nature with the eye of his own self-interest. When the streets are covered with a mask of ice, or the sleet is coming down, the surgeon begins to rustle around in the closet where he keeps his splints so he will have them handy. "Good fracture weather," he calls it.

A grim point of view, but let it be a lesson to you. Cheat the doctor and work carefully and slowly this winter. Do not despise rubbers. Don't force yourself to take exercise the day the sleet is on the ground. You may pay for that little bit of exercise with a two months' period of inactivity in bed.

The orthopedic surgeons have two periods when they expect fractures—icy sidewalk weather, and when the apples are beginning toget ripe. The latter season is signalized for them as the time the boys fall out of the trees and suffer broken arms.

If you should be unlucky you may be comforted in knowing that surgery has become skilful in the treatment of fractures. The X-ray and anaesthesia have made an entirely new science of it.

In the days before the X-ray the difficulties of setting a fracture were gigantic. Here were two broken ends of bones covered by mucles and skin. Many bones are surrounded by a thick mass of fleshy parts. To attempt to approximate the ends of a broken bone lying in such a position is like attempting to put together the two ends of a broken broomstick in the middle of a pillow. It is really harder, for the muscles attached to the ends of the broken bones keep pulling the broken ends apart.

But with the X-ray the part can be put on a screen and the ends of the bones seen as plainly as if they were dissected out. The muscles can be quieted with an anaesthetic. The approximation of the two broken ends can then be made and held in place while a cast or splint is put on. The next day the part can be put on the X-ray screen again to see whether it is still in place. And so on until full recovery is assured.

The number of deformities thus prevented is impossible to calculate. Fifty years ago certain kinds of fractures hardly ever were set without deformity. Frequently healing was so slow and poor that amputation of a limb was preferred to the result obtained. It is rare to see cripples nowadays where deformities are due to fractures. Not so long ago they were common sights.

Success has been even more striking with what are called compound fractures. A compound fracture is so called because a portion of the broken bone has protruded through the skin. This, of course, means that it has become infected. Such cases were the first examples of the antiseptic method in surgery as practiced by Lister. Before his time they usually became gangrenous and amputation was necessary even if life were saved at all.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CAN STILL SING AT 84 YEARS OF AGE

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 4—France's oldest and best beloved singer, Lucien Fugere, 84, is staging a fresh return and will sing in "The Barber of Seville" at the Opera Comique and "Le Maitre de Chapelle" at the Trianon-Lyrique within a few weeks. Monsieur Fugere has not sung "Le Maitre de Chapelle" since 1876 but he promises that it will be done better than ever before. He has always taken excellent care of his voice and, despite his good old age, has recently made some fine records of favorite numbers he used to sing.

EATS WHEAT FOR HEALTH

(International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 4—Eating and drinking wheat is the formula used by C. G. Sweet, 77-year-old dancing master, to keep healthy and fit for a long life. Sweet buys wheat at feed stores for 2½c a pound, and prepares it at home by parching and grinding to be used for cereal and bread as well as for coffee substitute.

Veteran Walker Says Americans Too Flabby

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4—American people are becoming too flabby," opines Elier U. Larsen, a giant of a man with a flowery beard, who stopped here for a few days rest after hiking the famed Appalachian trail from its northern terminus in Maine. Larsen expects to be the first man to walk the 2000-mile stretch of mountain paths, having started on the journey, August 14, 1930.

"The trail is a great thing," Larsen said. 'People should use it more so that they may learn to love the outdoors. American people are becoming too flabby.

'They ride in automobiles too much. The trail affords them an opportunity to change their habits." Larsen, who tips the beam well over two hundred pounds, has allowed his beard to grow since he started his 2,000-mile jaunt and it now reaches far down his waist front.

While hiking through the mountains of Northeastern Pennsylvania, Larsen said he saw more than he deer than he had on his whole journey, especially at Delaware Water Gap, where seven deer crossed his path.

Larsen will hike to Atlanta, Georgia, where the trail ends. There he will board a plane for Sherbourne Pass, Vt., to lecture to the Appalachian trail conference which will meet June 1, 1932.

The rugged hiker sleeps many nights in the open. He carries a fifty pound pack on his back. This includes a small tent. Many hunting cabins, with doors open to all, dot the trail here and there, Larsen said, and it is not always necessary to sleep in the open.

CUBAN FAILS IN TRY TO BOOST PRICES

HAVANA, Dec. 4—To hoist the price of sugar, Antonio Plazaola reasoned, it is necessary only to eat more sugar.

Having so reasoned, he wagered two pesos with his friend, Juan Perez Llamosas, that he could eat ten pounds of the low-priced sweet.

The pair went to the Quirinal grocery store. They bought two five-pound bags of sugar. While the curious gathered, Plazaola began to eat.

He ate and he ate, until, at the seventh pound, he was seized suddenly be severe pains. Plazaola had to be given emergency treatment.

WISCONSIN FROG MAN FAILS TO FEEL SLUMP

AMERY, WIS., Dec. 4.—The depression has not affected William Huttler, known as the frog man in this section of the state. Catching frogs is one of his enterprises. He also traps gophers, crows, rattlesnakes and fishes for turtles.

Many of the frogs he catches with a large net are sold for fishing bait. Others are shipped to Chicago and served at hotels and restaurants.

"Hard times don't affect me," Huttler says. "I've always got a job and I'm my own boss. What more could I want?"

McConnell Shoots Bear At Clearfield

The woods of this part of the state have a bountiful supply of deer for the huntsmen, but bears are few and far between. However, local friends have received word from David "Mac" McConnell, of Galbraith avenue, telling of the 140 pound bear he shot while hunting in the vicinity of Clearfield.

CHIPMUNK HALTS OREGON INDUSTRY

ALBANY, Ore., Dec. 4.—Just how he did it is a mystery, but a chipmunk paralyzed industry for a while in cities of Albany, Scio, Jefferson and Stayton.

At a local substation was heard a sudden roar, motors stopped, lights went out. The singed body of the little squirrel-like creature was pointed out as the cause of a broken insulator and consequent power stoppage.

Soft Coal Program Has Been Approved

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A program for reviving the soft coal industry, which has slumped seriously for more than a decade, was approved Thursday by Colonel William J. Donovan, former U. S. assistant attorney general, at a meeting of operators here.

While details were closely guarded, the plan was said to be completely within the anti-trust laws. It was reported to include mergers inside the bituminous industry and to call for a unified sales agency.

Fifty operators were at the meeting, which was held by the National Coal Association. A sub-committee of 15, which had been studying the situation for several weeks, submitted a report which was said to emphasize the consolidated sales plan and which received Colonel Donovan's approval.

The approval given the measure by Donovan was considered of great significance, owning to his former work for the department of justice as prosecutor in numerous anti-trust law cases.

The operators, it was indicated, will act formerly on the plan later in the session. When several changes have been made, an attempt will then be made to put it into operation.

Boys Re-Set Trees They Tore Out At Farm Near Volant

Mercer State Police Nab Youths Who Admit Prank; Charge Dropped

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Dec. 4.—So enthused did an unthinking group of Volant youths become over the fast-approaching Christmas, Thursday morning, that a row of 15 pitch pine trees on the farm of S. A. Allen, near Volant, suffered from the boys' violent uprooting complex.

The row of pine seedlings, planted by Mr. Allen several years ago, had reached a height of four or five feet. The state plants them here and there in its reforestration program.

State police from Mercer answered the call from Volant when the truck load of boys piled off to do their damage. Apprehended later, the 16-year-olds told authorities they didn't realize what damage they were doing.

So penitent were they, that, at their own suggestion, they re-planted the trees. No charges were made.

Fiery Little Mexican Film Star Will Defend Self In Los Angeles Court

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—Dolores Del Rio, fiery Mexican film star, was expected to take the stand today to tell her version of asserted "extra legal" services, for which her former attorney, Gunther Lessing has brought suit for $31,000 in fees.

Dr. David Perry, son of Dr. Samuel W. Perry, was elected a member of the society last night.

The society also heard routine reports of its various functions.

New Trial Is Refused Quinn In Conti Case

Plaintiff Will Lose Money Which Was Placed Through Clyde Gibson

In an opinion handed down by Judge James A. Chambers today a new trial was refused in the case of William J. Quinn against Joseph and Louise Conti.

The case was one in which Mr. and Mrs. Conti had borrowed $2000 from William J. Quinn, the loan being negotiated through former Attorney Clyde Gibson.

Defendants paid the entire amount of the loan with interest, but Quinn claimed that there was still owing to him $1500.

The question involved in the case was one of agency. Whether Gibson was acting as agent for Quinn in making the loan, or for the Conti's who had made application to Gibson for it.

Following a trial the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendants. Quinn made an application for a new trial, which the court has now refused. This means that Quinn loses his money.

Speakers of national repute will bring the message of the renewed efforts of the forces of prohibition to protect the Eighteenth Amendment and insure law enforcement. The campaigners include Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman, Dr. Oliver W. Stewart, vice-chairman, Norma C. Brown, secretary, Dr. Ira Landrith, president of the National Temperance Council, Colonel Raymond Robins, social economist, the Hon. Grant M. Hudson, former outstanding dry leader of Congress, and Robert C. Ropp, chairman of the Allied Youth.

The speakers work in three divisions Colonel Robins and Mr. Ropp being here the first day, Miss Brown and Mr. Hudson, the second, and Dr. Landrith, Dr. Poling and Dr. Stewart here the final day.

Attorney Clarence A. Patterson is general chairman of the local group of the meetings. Allied Youth is taking an important part in the new fight and youth councils are organized in each community visited. Robert C. Ropp, a young man, feels that it is the younger generation on whom the success of prohibition depends to a great extent.

The Allied Forces have two other divisions, Allied Business Men and Allied Women. The campaigners are attempting through their ten months of oratory in some 26 cities to counteract the general impression desseminated by wets, that Prohibition has failed.

The drive started September 8th in Columbus, O. The campaigners have already visited thirty states in the Southwest and Northwest, the Pacific coast, and New England securing tens of thousands of enrollments. The campaigners come here from Akron, O., and go from here to DuBois, Pa.

SEX, INTERESTS MOST READERS, SURVEY SHOWS

CHICAGO, Dec. 4—Sex interests the average American reader more than any other subject, students of the graduate library school at the University of Chicago found after a lengthy inestigation of reading tastes in America.

High school teachers are not greatly interested in the prohibition question, and women take more interest in marriage and divorce than men do, were other statements made by the students.

State Suicide Rate Is Not On Increase

(Special To The News)

HARRISVILLE, Dec. 4—It is commonly thought that times of business depression, such as we have been passing through for some time now, are conductive to a great increase in the death rate from suicide. Such is not indicated by the figures compiled for the first 8 months of 1931, and given out by the Bureau of Vital Statistics, State Department of Health. We may read in our daily paper that some man here, and another there, has taken his own life and the cause is given as financial worry. Then we are apt to conclude that a suicidal mania is sweeping the state.

The suicide rate for the current year, in which it will be admitted the depression has been most wide spread, based on figures for the first 8 months, reaches only 14.2 per 100,000 population, against 14.1 in 1930. If you point out that the depression also existed last year, then we will go back to 1928, when prosperity was rampant, and we find the rate that year to be 13.3. In simpler terms, the mental effect of the financial stringency has resulted in an increase of suicides, amounting to one person in each 100,000 annually.

This speaks volumes for the sanity, clear mindedness and straight thinking of the citizens of this commonwealth. As a body they do not propose to yield to the influences of darkness and despair. Realizing that health of body and mind is the greatest asset they can possess, they are standing solidly against that type of advice that seems to say: "all is lost, why longer try to live?"

Then also it is worthy of notice that the suicide rate is always higher for the balance of the United States death registration area, than it is in the state of Pennsylvania. It has been true for nearly 20 years, and it is predicted that it will continue to be true as the figures for the current year are compiled.

Almost one-fourth of the suicides are in the age group from 45 to 54 years. The second largest group in the age period from 35 to 44 years. Guns come first, as instruments of death; the rope second; and poison gas third.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

New Castle Municipal Golf course and club house east of the city are new enough for a majority of the people in the city to remember it as the City Home for unfortunates, whom the city had to provide a home for. Its history, even though a thing of the past as a city home, is still of interest, if for no other reason that in its time it was one of the few such city homes and was noted as being one of the best managed and most economically conducted institutions of its kind in the state. It was originally located in Shenango township and consisted of some forty-four acres of land presented to the city by Charles M. Phillips and such improvements as the city made on the land. A special act of the legislature in the winter of 1856-1866 was passed for the establishment of a home for the unfortunate and James B. McKee and William B. Lutton appointed commissioners to attend to the location and erection of buildings. A vote was taken by the citizens of the county and the institution voted against by all the townships except Pollock, now the third, fourth, fifth and eighth wards of the city. Thereupon Mr. Phillips made out a deed for the property to the city. The buildings were erected in the summer of 1867, at a cost of between four and five thousand dollars and were good substantial frame structures. October 14, 1897, the institution was destroyed by fire, but fortunately the sixteen inmates escaped without injury. After the original buildings were completed November 27, 1867, the commissioners appointed Archibald Cubbison, Robert Reynolds and George Pearson as poor directors and they constituted the first board. The institution was rebuilt after the fire and continued on until the county established its present home. During the time that the city maintained the home, it was maintained by taxes paid by the city of New Castle.

Birth Rate Double State Death Rate

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4—The birth rate in Pennsylvania was almost exactly double the death rate for the month of August, 1931, compiled data from the Bureau of Vital Statistics, State Department of Health, showed, according to Dr. Emlyn Jones, Registrar.

The figures just released, show 15,658 live births for the month while the total number of deaths from all causes, was 7,689.

There is a drop of about a half a point in the birth rate over 1930, and a full point falling off from 1929. The death rate is also slightly lower than the two preceding years, dropping a fraction of a point for each year.

The death rate of infants less than one year old fell to 52 per one thousand live births, six points lower than the same months in 1930 However the figures show that 810 babies died before reaching the age of 12 months.

IF CHILD DRIVERS CRASH, PARENTS PAY

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4—The Pennsylvania vehicle code makes a parent liable to damages who permits a child under 16 years of age to operate a motor vehicle and injuries to another person result from an accident when the child is driving, Walter W. Matthews, chief of the safety division of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles today pointed out. The same liability also applies to a person not a parent who allows a child less than sixteen to operate an automobile.

"Children under sixteen may be safe drivers in the opinion of their parents, but the law does not so regard them," Matthews said. "Parental pride in the youngster's ability at the wheel can quickly be turned into parental remorse. The law says that any owner of a motor vehicle who permits a child under the age of sixteen to operate a car is liable with such minor for any damages resulting from an accident when the child was driving."

Butler's Successor on the Job

Wotta Life! Poor Fellows!

"Mystery" Witnesses Will Be Called For Defense Of Powers

Defense Counsel Lines Up Two Witnesses Reported New In Case

(International News Service)

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 4.—Two "mystery" witnesses will be called in an effort to save Harry F. Powers, alleged "blue-beard," from the noose for the slaying of Mrs Dorothy Lemke, Northboro, Mass., widow, it was indicated today as J. Edgar Law, defense counsel, filed a list of eleven defense witnesses who will be called when Powers' trial opens here next Monday.

One of the "mystery witnesses" is Charles Rogers, the unknown person who, Powers stoutly maintains, can solve the deaths of Mrs. Lemke and Mrs. Astha Eicher, wealthy Park Ridge, Ill., widow and her three children. Powers has been indicted for the murder of all five persons but will be tried for the death of Mrs. Lemke next week.

Rogers Named

Rogers, according to Powers, was his rival for the affections of both women and can explain how they died. No one connected with the case has yet seen or heard of Rogers, but Law maintained today he will be present when Powers' trial opens in Moore's Opera House here.

The second "mystery witness" is Cecil Johnson, whose connection with the case is known only to defense counsel. No mental experts or alientists were listed by the defense as prospective witnesses, as had been anticipated.

Interest in the trial has reached fever pitch in this region and preparations were being made today to handle the crowds who will be on hand when Powers faces a jury next week.

New Schools Aid In Giving Work

HARRISBURG, Dec. 4.—The department of public instruction is conducting a number of school building surveys in various parts of the state and preparing school building programs which promise to assist in the solution of the unemployment situation in these districts.

Recently a comprehensive building program was prepared for Oil City, accepted by the board of school directors and the school loan of $600,000 was approved by the electors on November 3. Work will be started immediately to carry out the construction of the new high school building.

Contracts have been awarded and work started on the $900,000 high school building for Pottsville.

Plans for the new platoon school at Lancaster have been prepared as the first unit of development of the building program which is being conducted by the department. A unique plan has been prepared and forms the nucleus of the new school plant which will replace the obsolete buildings.

MOVEMENT TO IMPROVE JUDICIARY

(International News Service)

LOSA NGELES, Dec. 4.—Dean William G. Hale of the school of law, University of Southern California, a member of a national committee to launch a nation-wide survey of methods of selection of judges together with questions as to training, tenure, and salaries, is keen on improving the judiciary.

The survey is being sponsored by the National Municipal league, the Institute of Law of Johns Hopkins university and the American Judicature society.

"Judges constitute the keystone of the arch of the judicial structure. The brand of justice administered depends upon the brand of men who administer it. Judges are the oracles of the common law and the interpreters of our statutes. Education, experience, temperament and character are determining factors in their administration of the law. To secure these qualities in substantial measure we must obviously look to methods of selection, tenure and salaries. In a country wedded to the idea of popular election the problem is extremely difficult of solution.

"A nation-wide survey is timely and should place, both before the profession and the public, information and suggestions which will prove of great value."

The Ohio candiadte for governor who has decided to finance his campaign by charging an admission of 25 cents when he makes a stump speech is the closest thing to the automobile show yet developed in this country.—The Sioux City Journal.

WHAT NEW CASTLE SCHOOLS ARE DOING

Under the general caption of "Know Your School Series," a series of bulletins has been prepared by various teachers of the New Castle schools dealing with the activities of the schools.

Each bulletin deals with some particular phase of school life in this city and the entire series can be classed as a full description of the school curriculum here.

VOCATIONAL HOME ECONOMICS

By VIOLA W. HEALY

Home economics as a branch of education occupies a paramount position in the education of the present generation. Home economics studies contain a wealth of subject matter native to the interests and activities of girls. Ideals need to be created, appreciations developed, interests awakened, abilities exercised, information strengthened and enough creative and manipulative skills acquired to give girls entering womanhood the inspiration of personal achievement.

Reasons for Teaching Home Economics:

The home built upon love and respect is the most significant and indispensable of all social institutions. Present day tendencies are threatening its stability in several ways:

1. In the conspicuous absence of the family within the home.
2. In people's tendency to live beyond their income.
3. In lack of parental control.
4. Neglect of spiritual and moral education.

Eighty to 90 per cent of all our girls will become homemakers. The remainder will in some way be connected with homes. The home no longer provides the training needed by girls and boys. Home economic training is a direct asset to the girl in a business or professional career in that because of her training she will be better able to determine value in return for the money she is earning—she will have the knowledge of the proper selection of food values to keep herself in good health and will have the ability to know just what to buy to make herself attractive and will have the skill of manipulating the needle to further her economic living.

Furthermore, within five years or less a business girl is likely to become a homemaker. Women and girls have the responsibility of spending a large per cent of the money incomes for themselves and families.

No other course in high school gives training in thinking and in judgment on personal and home problems.

Objects in Home Economics:

To keep the curriculum up to date we must study life about us and in so doing consider the following:

1. Objectives in satisfying life and what comprises efficient homemaking.
2. Activities of the homemaker.
3. Provision for training for the necessary home activities with special emphasis on those problems where efficiency is lacking in the performance of managerial tasks.

Vocational home economics or homemaking education should have as its primary objective the fitting of an individual girl or woman to produce valuable goods or service in the home. It should enable her to assume full responsibility for some or all of the various occupations that go to make up the vocation of homemaking. Vocational home economics should enable her to become a skilled worker and to perform in the home labor of economic value.

Above all, effort is constantly being made to show that the happiest homes are those that are made comfortable to live in. It is the business of someone to see that the family is well fed, comfortably dressed, interested and happy and this can only be done by educating for appreciation as well as for skill.

The part time school program for homemaking has been very effective and is resulting in an instruction that is directly benefiting the girl in her daily life. The teaching in the classroom has helped her meet problems of illness in the home, clothe herself on a limited income, select proper food to keep her body satisfactorily nourished and find recreation which is possible and satisfying in relation to her time and dollars and cents.

Under the provisions of the Pennsylvania vocational act passed in 1914 and the federal vocational educational act of 1917, there are granted state and federal funds for the specific purpose of aiding school districts in carrying on a program of vocational education. The Pennsylvania vocational educational act of 1926 places all teachers of home economics on Edmonds Aid on the same basis as other high school teachers; in addition, from 25 to 55 per cent of the actual salaries are paid from state and federal funds for approved instruction.

Projects:

The home project is now recognized as a necessary part of a school program in home economics. It is the best means of determining how class instruction is actually functioning in the life of the pupils. Contact with the home enables both teacher and pupil to plan for the actual needs of pupils and affords the opportunity for parents to realize what the school is doing for their children in this field of education.

A home project in home economics indicates a piece of work—a job—which is chosen by a pupil to be carried on in the home for the purpose of acquiring skill and managerial ability. The projects are planned to correlate class instruction in the various phases of home economics.

Home Practice and Home Projects:

Home practice is a necessary part of home projects, but is of shorter duration than home projects. Home projects must have management included. For example, home practice would be designated by such activity as "making beds, and the general care of bed line, covers and mattresses" to enable the girls to care for their own bedrooms each morning before they come to school.

A home project would enable a high school girl, who has many home duties, to perform this work for the members of the household each morning as one phase of her home responsibility. She might make time and motion studies of the various operations performed in carrying out this project so that there will be no loss of time or energy, and so that she may skillfully and quickly perform this work in the time allowed for this type of activity in her daily working schedule.

It is necessary, therefore, that training in homemaking for our girls be given which will enable them to build and maintain a home and thus make the foundation rock of our country safe. Home economics is consequently the open door which gives an opportunity to magnetize our future mothers with the responsibility of homemaking.

The Subject of Home Economics:

In the topical outline which follows, the subject of home economics has been set up as having three main divisions: 1, The home and the family; 2, food, and 3, clothing.

The units under each division of the subject have been set up as follows:

I—THE HOME AND THE FAMILY

A—Care and management of the home.

B—Selection, planning and furnishing of the house.

C—The family, child care and training, family relationships, etc.

II—FOOD

A—Meal planning, selection, purchase, preparation and service.

B—Food care, preservation and storage.

C—Food industries.

III—CLOTHING

A—Selection and purchase of ready-made articles and garments.

D—Clothing and textile industries.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has said, "Every girl should be taught to sew not merely for the sake of making something, but as an accomplishment which may prove a stabilizer in time of perplexity and distress. Many a time, when I have needed to hold myself firmly, I have taken up my needle; it might be a sewing needle, knitting needle or a crochet hook—whatever its form or purpose it often proved to be a [illegible] of the compass, keeping me to the course. I look for a revival of the homey household arts. Such a revival may not bring about the peace of nations, but I firmly believe that it will aid in bringing peace within our homes, and this will be more far-reaching than we realize."

Co-Eds Pick "Perfect Man" By Different Scoring Systems

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The "perfect man" may exist but the co-eds of either eastern or western colleges and universities haven't discovered him. In the opinion of the girls at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., Columbia university and the University of California this type of human being is only a mirage.

Some of the girls have offered to pay half the expenses of dates providing they went out with a man of this type.

Some of the qualifications of the "perfect man" insisted upon by the female sex are that he should be "big, tall and broad-shouldered; must talk, think and provide well; must not only be an excellent dancer but also a good drinker. They placed particular emphasis on the fact that he must clearly understand the meaning of 'no' and have nothing to do with spats, cigarettes and moustaches." These to the co-eds are absolutely horrid.

Moreover, they added, if a man had all these qualities he wouldn't expect or even allow a girl to pay half the expenses of dates.

However, they assumed a skeptical attitude. None had ever "met that kind of a woman so why should men be different," they asked.

Although she had missed the "perfect man", Gertrude Swick of Bayonne, N. J., '33, admitted she might adopt the 50-50 payment plan if he were to cross her path.

Geraldine Schwabe, '32, thought splitting date expenses was perfectly absurd. "If you try to save money for a man by paying your own way," she said, "he will simply spend it on another girl. I might just as well get the benefit as someone else."

But with Columbia men, things were different. The majority favored the 50-50 date proposal.

"If a girl wants a date," explained Jerome E. Friend, '32, of Dupont, Pa., "she'll not only pay her way but likely as not tell you she has a couple of tickets for a show."

Mme. Jose Laval Now To Face Hard Work And Study

Daughter Of Prime Minister To Take Up Study Of Law

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Hard work and study are in style for pretty Mademoiselle Jose Laval, twenty-year-old daughter of France's popular Prime Minister just home from their momentous visit to the United States. She now intends to learn law, according to what she termed "positively her last interview" to one of the Parisian dailies.

"I must go back to my studies now," said Mademoiselle Laval, "I may never practice law, but I must have some profession, some big interest in life and many French women have become very clever at this law business, you know."

Asked, for the last time, her real impressions of America, the young French girl summed them all up in the one word "wonderful," which she naturally learned while on the other side. Everything she saw, including the famous sky line, the Statute of Liberty, Fifth avenue and all the pretty girls walking on it, were "wonderful".

Even the Princeton-Navy football game must have been "wonderful" from the film that was sent to Mademoiselle Jose and which happened to be all she did see of that game.

She is already dreaming of another trip to America and this time it will be a longer one. She now wants to see the Sunny South and the Far West, the galleries and museums.

"Oh, oui, I just must see America again," she ended.

Con Men Dust Off Old Ones; They're Good Yet In Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Confidence men are dusting off the old ones, it became evident yesterday as Chicago authorities started a hunt for three swindlers who took $62,500 from Karl Offer, San Francisco wine brick man, on the ancient sure-thing race tip.

Offer, who is an official of the Vino Sano Wine Brick Company, came into Chicago several weeks ago to seek distributors for his wine bricks in nearby territory.

Three men appeared in responses to an advertisement. They were eager to sell his wine brick in a restricted territory, they told him. The four set out for St. Paul, Minn., to meet with the financial backers of the three would-be distributors. They were seated in a St. Paul restaurant when one of the men exclaimed:

The bill fold was retrieved. In it was several hundred dollars in currancy and a card, indicating the owner was a racing man.

"Let's look the fellow up and give him his money" one of the men suggested to Offer. So the four repaired to the turfman's office.

"You fellows are certainly white," said the "turfman." "It isn't everybody that would return this money. I know you fellows wouldn't take any money, but I guess you wouldn't be sore if I gave you a couple of sure things on the races."

Some bets were made and cashed.

"Let's make a killing" was suggested to Offer. So Offer handed over $62,500 to the "turfman" to wager for him. Then the confidence men disappeared.

Now Offer is making a tour of the picture galleries—looking at bureau of identification photographs.

PORCUPINES NEWEST ENEMY OF TREES

DURANGO, Colo., Dec. 4.—San Juan national forest officials have discovered a new enemy of trees—porcupines.

A campaign against them, he said, would be made this winter.

WAITERS DISLIKE TUXEDOS

(International News Service)

STOCKHOLM — The Stockholm waiters want to be rid of their frock coats and tuxedos and dress in white. And since they cannot convince their employers that they have appealed to the Swedish health authorities to have the black garments declared unhygienic. "Frock coats are heavy and uncomfortable," says Bernard Garsten, their trade union agent. "Furthermore it is expensive to keep the shirts starched and clean. The whole outfit is not adapted for handling food."

New Castle-Union High Battle Saturday

CHARITY GAME FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN TO START AT 2 P. M.

Proceeds Of Game Will Go To Aid School Children In City And Township Institutions—Coach Boyd's Blue And White Eleven In "Peak" Of Condition For Game With Coach Bridenbaugh's Machine—Look For Fast Tussle—Tickets For Game Sell Fast—Scotland Lane Team Hopes To Give Senior High Boys Plenty Of Opposition—Taggart Stadium Expected To Be Filled With Spectators.

Saturday afternoon, Taggart stadium will be the battleground where two local schoolboy elevens will battle for supremacy as Union high school's Blue and White gridders line up to oppose New Castle high in a benefit game for the school children of the city and township. The starting whistle will be sounded at 2:00 o'clock sharp.

The Mayor's Relief committee which is in charge of the game announced this morning that everything has been arranged for the contest. The two gridiron rivals conclude training for the fracas this afternoon. A battle that will be remembered for a long time is expected to be the outcome. Tickets for the game are selling fast and it is anticipated that several thousand fans will gather to witness this tussle.

Union high, according to its coach David Boyd, is in the peak of condition for the setto. The Union team averages about 146 pounds. "If the field is dry we will give New Castle a good battle, although we will be playing under big handicap," Coach Boyd stated. Six teams have felt the sting of defeat at the hands of the Scotland Lane team to date. East high of Youngstown was the only team to defeat Union, the score being 13-7.

Union tied Ellwood City and Freedom and then trimmed Zelienople, Alumni, Mars, Shenango, Bessemer and Scienceville. This team is one of the best to represent Union in a number of years. Union also won the class B title here.

Boyd would not say what kind of an attack he contemplates using against the Coach Bridenbaugh team. Since coaching at Union he has turned out several winning combinations. In 26 games his teams have won 19, lost 5 and tied 2. Up until East defeated Union, the Scotland Lane boys played 15 games without a defeat.

This afternon the final workout of the week will take place for the township boys. The drills will be light. The Union backfield, composed of J. Augustyn, L. Augustyn, Monico and that plunging fullback Jaworski, may trouble the New Castle boys.

The line will probably be something like this: Davis and Lannigan at ends, Sniezek and Allen at guards, Georgacz and Dec at tackles and Phillips or Richeye at center.

J. Augustyn tips the beams at 200 pounds. He is reputed as being a hard man to stop.

Coach Phil Bridenbaugh ordered his gridders through a scrimmage Wednesday and stated that his boys are in good condition. When asked about the game he stated that Union may prove stiff opposition. New Castle is favored to cop the game.

Plans Complete.

Alec Samuels, chairman of committee in charge, stated plans for the game are complete. Tickets which have been on sale for the past few days have been going fast, he states. Ticket booths will be opened at 1 o'clock. Tickets for the game can be purchased at the Sporting Goods store until 12 o'clock. The city police and the committeemen are also selling pasteboards for the game. The game starts promptly at 2 o'clock.

The money realized from this means will be divided among the schools to help the school children.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Jimmy Dime, a connoisseur of boys pugnacious, is looking forward to the day when he can sic Billy Joyce against some of the best boys in the country and if Joyce's last two performances augur anything he may soon be battling some mighty good opponents.

Until Paris Cankey laid Johnny Kusic low,. the. Youngstown .140 pounder had been going along fairly good. . A few months later, Joyce, practically a babe of the ring surprised the fistic gallery by giving Kusic a tasty licking then rocking him to sleep.

Some of the boys thought the knockout of Kusic only a fluke and Joyce was mated with Tommy Ulrey, a rather tough tombre of Youngstown. Joyce proceeded as soon as the bell sounded to show the Kusic victory was no fluke and he scored a technical knockout over Ulrey in the fifth round.

Joyce has been under the tutelage of Jimmy Dime for several months. Being a conscientious chap Billy has listened to Dime's advice and his victories goes to show what can be accomplished by a youngster with a good heart, stout physique and ability I think.

Dime doesn't intend to hurry Joyce but he will put him against a better opponent in each succeeding fight. Jimmy believes that Joyce has a good chance of making good and with the knockouts of Kusic and Ulrey as exploitation material is ready to send Billy into the ring again.

Bot Latera has Johnny Banko working and it will probably result in the West Pittsburger showing on the next card here. Ray Ritchie would have received a chance against Asto or Mancuso had his hand been right. Battling Terry's Walter West is anxious to tackle Banko or anybody at his weight.

Bill Hunter has hit town. Willyum is a big colored gentleman from Charleroi. He weights 200 and the firm of Smith & Dygert believe that he would make a good match against Nick Gruber and boys of that class. They have their gang work out each evening.

Pop Eye Gibson would like to take a Homer Gray, from what we have heard and believing that such a match may be staged, Arch Cumo is drilling the long-legged middleweight for the shot. Gibson is a peculiar fighter but he bags the award and it is decision and knockouts that count.

Minor Leaguers End Sessions At West Baden, Ind.

WEST BADEN, Ind., Dec. 4.—Major league baseball magnates today were recuperating from a strenuous session of the National Association of Professional baseball Leagues and were preparing to advance on Chicago next week when the National and American League conferences will be held.

Inauguration of a five-man rule in the association, in place of the 22-year rule of President Mike Sexton of Rock Island, Ill., was the high light of the session. Officials of the minor league said bigger and better things were in store for their clubs, as the result of the change.

Sexton co-operated generously in the move which brought about his own downfall. All other officers were retained, however, including Henry Farrell of Auburn, N. Y., secretary-treasurer, and the board of arbitration.

Determination to revive an apparently waning public interest in minor league baseball was stated to be back of the association's action. The new governing committee plans to start at once on a study of all phases of baseball in an effort to make the game more attractive.

House Of David Team Victors In St. Mary's Game

Saints Open Season With Defeat At Hands Of Long Whiskered Quintet 36 To 22

The St. Mary's varsity basketball team got off on the wrong foot in the first game of the season last night at the St. Mary's Auditorium when the House of David quintet from Los Angeles, California, handed the locals a 36 to 22 setback. A fair sized crowd witnessed the game.

The long-whiskered boys surprised the local fans with their ability to throw them despite the flowing beards, from all parts of the floor. The first quarter found the Saints suffering stage fright and failed to score a point while the visitors piled up 18 points. The Saints settled down and the first half ended 22 to 4. In the third quarter the Saints played their best basketball piling up eleven points against two for the House of Daviders. The third quarter ended 24 to 15. In the final period the House of David team started to draw away and ended 36 to 22. The locals were somewhat crippled by the absence of "Bub" Jones, but his running mate Francis Uhle upheld the honors of the guards and led in the scoring with three baskets in addition to playing a whale of a floor game.

Uhle Is Star

The visitors were uncanny shots from any angle on the floor. The leading scorers were Hill, G. Walters and Campbell. Outside of the first period when they simply could not locate the hoops the locals played fine basketball. The House of David team is rated on a par with the New York Celtics of years ago or any of the National league teams.

The summary:

St. Mary's 22.		H. of D. 36.
Kulich	F	G. Walters
Gennock	F	Campbell
Alexander	C	McMahan
Parker	G	B. Walters
Uhle	G	Hill

CLINIC GIVES WAY BEFORE ECONOMY

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Germany's most famous Surgical Clinic has become a victim of the government's economy axe, literally speaking. For reasons of economy Berlin's oldest, at the same time Germany's best-known University clinic, will be closed down and torn down.

Professor August Bier, its head and seventy year-old veteran surgeon, who had not even been asked whether his clinic should continue or not, called the government's action a heavy blow to the "noble tradition of Germany's foremost and world-famous surgeons, who had all emerged from this clinic."

"Men like von Grafe, Dieffenbach, von Langenback and von Bergmann have laid the foundation to their world-fame in this clinic," declared Professor Bier in an interview. "They presented mankind with numerous new surgical inventions, of which it is still benefitting.

"True, the clinic is now a little obsolete, but we should not destroy such landmarks of scientific tradition, which spread the name and fame of many German surgeons to all corners of the civilized world."

MAY GLEDHILL and SON — MRS W. H. CONNOR — WM. H. CONNOR.

Despite the fact that May Gledhill, Canadian beauty, was the cause of breaking up her home and wrecking her happy married life, Mrs. Inez Noah Connor was the only one to come to former's assistance when Mrs. Connor's husband, William, with whom Miss Gledhill lived, was sent to jail for forgery, leaving his mistress and their illegitimate child destitute. The wronged wife took the woman who supplanted her in her husband's affections into her home at Floral Park, L. I., and not only forgave her, but now admits that she has learned to love the forlorn beauty and her child. Recently a visit by men, who posed as immigration officials, threatened to break the strange partnership that exists between the women, as it was hinted that deportation proceedings were afoot to send Miss Gledhill to Canada. As a result the unfortunate "Ski Girl" suffered a nervous breakdown. However, officials of the U. S. Immigration Office have denied that any representative of that department was authorized to call upon Miss Gledhill, who is now being cared for by the woman who has most cause to wish her anything but well.

Further Facts On Ellwood School Work

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 4.—A further discussion on the various departments and their functions in the Ellwood City schools take place in this installment of Supt. W. Ray Smith's survey report. Character education, week day religious education and school banking are important trainers in the local school system.

Character Education.

Believing that the principal purpose of the schools is to train children to become good citizens and that book knowledge fulfills this purpose only insofar as it is based upon good character. All of our school work in all grades is definitely related to the formation of habits necessary for good character training.

Each pupil begins his day by hearing the reading of the Bible, saying the Lord's Prayer, pledging himself to protect property and pledging allegiance to our country and its flag. Since it is realized that this might become a mere form and part of the day's work, each teacher weekly takes some time to discuss with the pupils the meaning of these pledges.

Different subjects then contribute in their particular way. Many stories in the readers have a definite character application. History through biography teaches that the greatest influence upon the world has been made by those men with a strong, admirable character. The child learns through games, especially in the playroom, the value of team-work, cooperation and good sportsmanship. In the art and music classes he learns an appreciation of the beautiful. Dramatizations in the auditorium classes present topics dealing with worthwhile traits of character. Slogans dealing with various habits have been worked out in the English classes and then made into posters in the art rooms. These posters are then placed in each class room where they are a constant reminder to the child.

However, all discussion means nothing unless it is practiced so constantly throughout each day every pupil is expecterd to act as a good citizen acts. In this manner the attention of each pupil is called to such things as punctuality, honesty, respect for authority, respect for the rights of others, thrift in money, property and clothing, safety and generosity as his actions demand.

Character education cannot be taught as a special subject for it touches our lives at every turn and consequently must be the background upon which all of our decisions and actions are made. Each teacher realizes this and through her own actions as an example and through the means stated above, she works constantly to mold good character in her pupils.

Week Day Religious Education.

Believing that in true education the spiritual life must not be neglected, but developed in such a way as to lead to right living, representatives of the Jewish, the Catholic and the Protestant churches of Ellwood City met in July, 1925, to formulate some plan by which classes in religious education might be organized. It was decided that each faith should provide its own teacher and carry on the work in the way which they deemed best.

A board of religious education was formed, representing the Protestant churches, a teacher was elected and the work began in the first six grades in October, 1925. The enrollment was voluntary, and during the past six years, during which this work has been carried on, the children attending have represented some 25 different denominations.

The subject matter used is entirely non-sectarian, chosen to so influence the lives of the children as to lead to an expression of Christian virtues, such as honesty and truthfulness in their own lives, and consists of prayers, songs and memorizing of certain selections from the Bible, and stories from the Bible.

The average attendance in the religious classes represents about 50 per cent of the children in grades 1-6, inclusive. At present three part time teachers, in addition to a supervisor, are employed. The work is financed by voluntary contributions and controlled by a board of directors.

School Banking.

William L. Stoddard, executive vice president of Council on Economic Education in Boston, in a recent address says, "In spite of the fact that we save, that we buy life insurance as no other nation does, that we are an unusually intelligent people, careless spending and management of personal money resources is an American habit."

"No one element makes for good citizenship more than does the proper practice of thrift, which is as much removed from miserliness on the one hand as it is from extravagance on the other. As we build the ideals of thrift we build character."

To teach thrift effectively means to make thrift a habit which will work automatically like all other habits.

Because of such arguments as these the management of Ellwood City schools in their efforts to secure the best training for our future citizens thought it best to introduce banking as a regular part of our school schedule. This was done in the year 1922.

The benefits to be derived are not so much the accumulation of money as the forming of the habits of saving. "The training of the individual not only to become a self-sustaining member of society but so he will in time be able and willing to repay at least a part of the debt he owes it."

The development of self-control to such an extent he will be willing to sacrifice the gratification of trivial present desires to attain greater permanent good is also desirable outcome.

Real banking methods are used and the children are receiving valuable training in business like ways as well as practical experience in habits of economy and self-denial which is essential in the formation of character.

Coming now to the practical development of the plan, the report of the American Bankers' association showed that during the school year of 1928-1929 37 per cent of the money deposited remained as a balance to the credit of the pupils. A year later the balance decreased to 26 per cent of the deposits, while the year 1930-1931 had a balance of $2,342,888.70 or only 9 per cent of the amount deposited during the year.

The figures do not necessarily show any decrease in interest but are due largely to the economic situation all over our country. The school savings accounts may have helped relieve the situation in many homes throughout the country as we who are in touch with conditions know they have done in Ellwood City.

The report in our vicinity shows much the same trend. The balance for June, 1929, was $37,152.54 while that for 1930 was $34,626.57. The deposits from July 1, 1930, to June 30, 1931, were slightly lower or a total of $21,105.73, while interest for the same period added $858.65. The withdrawals were much lighter, being $23,407.23, leaving the net savings for the year only $1442.84. The balance June 30, 1931, was $33,183.72, not very much less than in 1929.

Are we justified in claiming that from a monetary standpoint alone the results of this decade's experiment have been highly satisfactory in diverting this small amount from the candy, ice cream and tobacco bills to necessities for a period such as we are now facing?

We believe "that thrift is an investment in happiness that pays large dividends."

Correlation.

When we speak of correlation, we mean the interweaving of different school subjects so that the final product is a unified body of knowledge. In our after school lives we have a purpose for each thing which we do. We do not read just to satisfy ourselves that we are masters of the mechanics of reading, neither do we spell or work arithmetical problems for a similar reason. We use these skills as tools to accomplish some worthwhile purpose.

It is for this reason that we correlate our school work. Much of the knowledge taught in the elementary grades is geography, history and nature study, so this knowledge is used as the chief background for much of the other elementary work. Certain definite skills such as color technique and graphic vocabulary are taught in art, but these must be expressed through some concrete medium and we use the knowledge learned in the above subjects for this purpose. In like manner much of the material used for oral English work in the auditorium department comes from these factual subjects. The mechanics of reading must be taught so we use articles and stories that contain knowledge which is concerned with the topic being studied in geography or history. Arithmetic and spelling are essentially drill subjects but the purpose of the drill in arithmetic becomes evident to the pupil if he has to use it to solve problems which have arisen through his geography class and consequently are real problems to him. In addition to the regular spelling words listed for a grade, words are added which have given the pupils trouble in their written work. Music makes its contribution through songs of the various countries and health through the folk dances.

However, there is some correlation besides that outlined in the above program. There is much individual correlation between two departments. The art department makes booklets for spelling and other subjects. The arithmetic classes teach measuring as an aid to the art classes, and in like manner each department attempts to make its work fit into the work being done by the other departments.

By planning systematically the work of all departments we expect the child to learn through large units touching all departments rather than through masses of unrelated knowledge and skills.

Reading in Elementary Grades.

Any reading program should take into consideration the reading experiences of children and of adults in the home, in school and in modern life.

Reading activities are groups into two large types, namely, recreational reading and work-type reading.

Reading is the major subject in any school. It has been said that man's success along any line depends upon his ability to acquire thought from the printed page. Seventy per cent of the time in the primary school is spent in reading.

For several years the supplementary readers were shifted every three weeks among the different buildings and supplementary reading was taught by the community room teacher. Pupils being given two 40-minute periods a week with the emphasis on silent reading. The basic readers were taught in the regular class room by the reading teacher.

At the beginning of the year 1930-1931 the supplementary books were divided into small sets, and what is known as library rooms were established in all buildings. Books of every type are found in these library rooms. The basic reading is taught, and in addition a great deal of reference work is done, especially is this true in fifth and sixth grades where much reading is done for the geography and history teacher. A great deal of reading is done for pleasure. During the year small sets of books are loaned from the public library for two weeks for the purpose of pleasure reading. Pupils in fifth and sixth grades in the Hartman school have been taken as a class to the public library and the definite instruction as to the use of the library and reference books has been given them by Mrs. Charles the librarian.

During the year 1930-1931 the reading teachers under the direction of Dr. Yeakam of the University of Pittsburgh worked on new reading outlines for the Ellwood City schools. This outline has been copyrighted and will be of great value to the reading teachers.

The Gates primary reading tests were given to all pupils in the first three grades, and the Sangren-Woody reading tests to all pupils in fourth, fifth and sixth grades. One form of the test was given early in the school year, the other form near the close. In the meantime a great deal of remedial work was done. The improvement was very gratifying.

Stock Prices Rally; Railroads Benefit

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The railroad stocks staged a mild demonstration at the beginning of today's session on announcement of the New York Central's plan for taking care of its bank loans and short-dated notes. An issue of $100,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds will be pledged to secure short-term borrowing, which presumably the banks are willing to extend at this time.

Shorts in the railroad stocks were penalized a point or two as buying orders crowded the market in the opening period. Union Pacific jumped nearly 3 points. Atchison and Baltimore and Ohio rose 1½ points each.

Industrials followed the rails, stimulated by reports of a proposed new financing mechanism similar to the war finance corporation as part of President Hoover's plan for further credit aid to American industry. The speculative favorites which were under pressure in the last day of two rallied sharply, with Auburn Auto at 116, compared with the week's low price of 102½. The industrials in the Dow Jones averages stood at 91.02, against the October low at 86.45.

Stars of Only Unbeaten Team

To these two gridiron luminaries belongs much of the credit for the invincible team that Tulane University has put in the field this year. The New Orleans eleven is the only undefeated major football team in the country and if its winning streak holds good against Washington State it will have completed a perfect season. The gentleman with the ferocious expression is Don Zimmerman, halfback and All-American possibility. Inset is Jerry Dalrymple, end, and almost a unanimous choice for the mythical eleven.

FOUR IN HUNTING PARTY GET DEER

They were hunting in the vicinity of Crosby, McKean county, each member securing a fine big doe.

Three Accidents On City Streets

Machines Are Damaged In The Collisions Reported To Police

Mrs. A. I. Donnan of R. D. No. 3, reported to the police yesterday that she was enroute east on East Washington street, near the Terminal drug store and about to back into the curb to park, when a car bearing Pennsylvania 41460 going in the same direction and also parking, hit and damaged her car.

W. G. Ayres of 1003 North Jefferson street, reported that he was enroute north on North Mercer street at Sheridan avenue, when Thomas Stright of 448 County Line street, came west on Sheridan avenue and made a left hand turn onto North Mercer street in front of the Ayres machine, causing a collision. Both cars were damaged.

Anna M. Gallagher was enroute north on North Jefferson street at North street, as Mealy C. Miller of New Wilmington, came south on North Jefferson street and made a left turn onto East North street. The turn was made directly in front of the Gallagher car, causing it to hit the Miller car. Damage was done to both machines.

City Will Not Oppose Request

P. R. R. System To Ask For Watchman's Removal For Economic Reasons

H. T. Frushour, superintendent of the E. & A. division, P. R. R. system today asked the city's sanction to remove watchman at the Furnace street crossover and to also remove a watchman at the East Washington street crossing, excepting between the hours of 7 a. m. and 4 p. m. Council met in city hall, heard the communication read, then placed it on file.

According to Solicitor Robert White the railroad officials must receive sanction from the Public Service Commission. The councilmen indicated no opposition would be lodged by the city.

Superintendent Frushour informed the city fathers that there are no train movements across Furnace street crossing and that only a switch engine operates across East Washington street between 4 p. m. and 7 a. m.

ASKS THAT MAN WITH HIS AUTO BE PICKED UP

Earl Beighley of 713 Superior street, last night informed the city police that he had loaned his car to Paul Collins two days ago and that the latter had failed to return the same to him. Mr. Beighley asked the police to pick up both Collins and the machine. The missing machine is a Buick Coach bearing Pennsylvania license 1172V.

SMALL SEWER HAS BEEN CONSTRUCTED

Payment of $112.14, to A. C. Lusk was authorized when council met in city hall today. The payment is for the construction of a 24 inch storm sewer in the swail between Leasure and Garfield avenues, west of Wilmington avenue. The improvement was made to help alleviate a flood situation which follows heavy rainstorms.

MORE VENISON IN NEW CASTLE

Among the successful hunters who returned Thursday were James Cypher, Neshannock avenue, who shot an eight point buck; John Ingham, Neshannock boulevard, who got a doe, and Arthur Keefer and his son John, Hillcrest avenue, who both got deer.
